Ran Rum to Send 6 to College

WIFE LOYAL TO DYING SKIPPER

Declares Husband's Only Aim in Running Booze Was to Aid His Family

Captain Arthur Moore of Bear Island, Nova Scotia, master of the rum running schooner J. Scott Hankinson, dying in a Gloucester hospital from wounds received in a battle with rum pirates, turned rum runner to obtain money to send his six children to college.

This is the assertion of Mrs. Ethel P. Moore, his wife, who rushed here to her husband's bedside when she learned of his dying condition.

Mrs. Moore, a woman of thirty-two years, fell in a faint when she saw her husband in the hospital, and is now under the care of a physician, who fears the shock may be too great for her.

WIFE UNAWARE OF BUSINESS.

"I didn't know he was running rum to the United States," Mrs. Moore said, "and if he recovers, he will not continue in the business.

"He owns a third interest in the J. Scott Hankinson. He owns his own home; he earns enough to live on. But he is devoted to his family.

"He turned rum runner to get enough money ahead to send the children to college. There was no other reason. The last time he was home, he told me he thought he would have enough money ahead in a year to send our eldest boy to college.

"There are six children. The youngest, Parker, is only six months

BOTH MAIL PLANES AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Air mail planes winging both eastward and westward today in the 28-hour coast-to-coast tests are well ahead of their schedules and in position to establish new records. The eastbound plane bringing mail from the Pacific Coast arrived in Chicago at 3 a. m. today (3 a. m. Boston time) 2 hours and 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

The route east of Chicago has not been equipped with beacons for night flying, so the plane was held here until 4:23 a. m., when it nosed out toward Cleveland an hour and 22 minutes ahead of schedule.

Pilot W. D. Williams landed in Cleveland at 8.27 a. m. (9.27 Boston time). Pilot Paul F. Collins took up the flight to New York, two minutes later. Collins expected to fly through to New York without stopping.

Frank Yager, westbound air mail aviator, landed at Cheyenne, Wyo., at 2:54 mountain time, (5:54 Boston time.) from Omaha, Neb. He was one hour and 21 minutes ahead of schedule. One hour and 48 minutes later, the mail in charge of Pilot H. A. Collison hopped off again.

3 EVERETT FIREMEN HURT AS ASPHALT STILL BLOWS UP

An asphalt still exploded today following a fire in the plant of the Barrett Manufacturing Company on Beacham street, South Everett.

Three firemen—Albert Pickering, Fred Peavey and Edward Carlson—were injured. Pickering's face was badly cut, Peavey's legs, arms and face were cut and Carlson's hands were seriously burned. Other firemen were thrown to the ground and suffered minor cuts and bruises.

The roar of the explosion was heard for miles. The plant is located in the midst of many oil company tanks and the firemen worked strenuously to prevent a spread of the blaze. The damage will total several thousand dollars.

TRAIN HITS SECTION HAND NEAR ROXBURY CROSSING

Emanuel Torash Phiako, of Providence, a section hand, was possibly fatally injured today when he was struck by a Boston bound Wrentham train on the New Haven tracks near the Roxbury Crossing station.

Phiako was hurled from the railroad embankment to the cobblestones below, and removed to the City Hospital in a passing automobile. He was found to be suffering from a broken arm and possible internal injuries.

The accident occurred at Center and Amory streets, as the train was slowing down for the Back Bay station.

MAN PLUNGES TO DEATH IN N. Y. PARK ROW CROWD

New York, Aug. 23.—Samuel Gruber of Brooklyn today jumped or fell from an upper floor of the twenty-two story Municipal Building, landing in Park Row and narrowly missing morning crowds on their way to work. He was killed instantly.

Mrs. Margie McGurk, twenty-seven years old, of No. 31 South Main street, Natick, attempted suicide with veronal. She was found in an unconscious condition on the sidewalk of No. 43 Hano street, Brighton.

At St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the young woman's condition is not regarded as serious.

To Frank Raymond, of No. 24 Rice street, Cambridge, passerby who came across the girl when she was semi-conscious, the girl explained that she was unhappy and wished to end it all. She said that she became morose following a dispute with her husband.

WOMAN AND 2 MEN ARE LIQUOR VICTIMS

Three unidentified persons, two men and a woman, are at the City Hospital seriously ill from the effects of drinking poisonous liquors. The woman, about 45 years old, was found unconscious in a doorway of a house on Silver street, South Boston. She is on the danger list. One of the men, about 25 years old, was found on the sidewalk at Place and Washington streets South End. The other, about 35 years old, was found at Vinton street and Colight bia road, South Boston.

POOR SHOT, TRIES TO DIE AND IS ARRESTED

Bowman, a former race horse owner, recently lost heavily in stocks. Two nights ago he gave a party to his friends.

NAMES NEW ENVOY TO WORLD COURT

Buenos Aires, Aug. 23.—President De Alvear has appointed Dr. Manuel Augusto Montes de Oca who headed the Argentine delegation at the Santiago conference, as a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice. He will take the place of the late Dr. Luis M. Drago. The president also reappointed Dr. Estanislao S. Zeballos, Dr. Joaquin V. Gonzalez and Dr. Carlos Rodriguez Larreta to membership in the court. Their terms had expired.

LADY MARY BEATRICE THYNNE
Youngest daughter of Marquis of Bath reported to be Prince of Wales' choice as bride. The engagement will be formally announced in Autumn when the Prince returns from his tour of Canada.

PRINCE OF WALES BETROTHED TO RARE BEAUTY

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Aug. 23.—American society has long evinced a keen interest in the manifold reports which have had the Prince of Wales about to select this or that young princess or peeress as his bride and the future Queen of England. Several weeks ago I had the honor of chronicling, exclusively, that those persons in London, in a position to know whereof they speak, insist Lady Mary Beatrice Thynne, young est daughter of the Marquis of Bath, will eventually occupy a place on the English throne beside the Prince.

The romance between the eldest son of the British rulers and the graceful miss who can trace her ancestry back to the eleventh century, is the principal topic of conversation, in the smart London drawing rooms. On the highest authority, I can now state that the various phases of the romance were thoroughly discussed at a recent house party, given at the Marquis of Bath's ancestral abode, in Warminster, Wiltshire, and that the engagement will probably be announced in the autumn, when the Prince returns from his Canadian tour.

If my information is correct, and I have every reason to believe it is, inasmuch as it comes from sources close to Buckingham Palace, the Boston American will have scored a notable news "beat," for no mention of the possibility of an alliance between the Royal Household and the

MISSING GIRL IS HOME AND WILL WED

Ella is home so the wedding can go on. She only went to Holbrook. "Aunt Jo" lives at Holbrook.

Ella is the girl who leaped into newspaper headlines this morning when it was announced she—she is Ella Samson 21 years old of No. 40 Harvard street, Waltham—had vanished on the eve of her marriage and her family were grief-stricken.

There was great ado but strangely enough hours before the morning newspapers went to press Ella was home.

Said her sister today: "She came home at 10:20 last night. She had been with a friend of mother's in Holbrook. We call her "Aunt Jo."

"Ella left Tuesday as the paper stated. She walked to the end of Harvard street, took a car, changed twice and finally arrived at the South Station. She telephoned me to tell her fiance, Melvin G. Earle of No. 49 Astor street, Back Bay, she wouldn't marry him.

"Then she fainted. I thought she had hung up. She came to on a train, looked out and saw 'Holbrook.' She knew 'Aunt Jo' lived there and got off. That night she telephoned me. So in reality she wasn't missing at all.

"Last night when we heard a noise on the porch, Father said: 'I'll bet anything that's Ella.' It was. At 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Earle called. The reconciliation was touching.

"Yes, they'll be married as they had planned, the last week in August. Could you see Ella? Oh, no. Ella's in bed. She can't be disturbed.

EMERGENCY FUEL RULES READY

Challenge Accepted by Coolidge; Acts to Insure Supply

Washington, Aug. 23 (I.N.S.)—The Federal government has accepted the challenge thrown down by the operators and miners of the anthracite coal fields.

Quietly but forcefully, President Coolidge today put into motion all agencies at his command to speed up plans for assuring the country an adequate supply of fuel this Winter.

Regardless of what is done by the opposing groups at Atlantic City and whether or not a new wage scale is established to prevent a strike on Sept. 1, the administration is prepared at a moment's notice to launch a far flung organization to distribute hard coal to all regions which would be distressed by a cessation of mining operations at the end of the month.

The President feels that the time for toleration of delay in the strike situation is rapidly drawing to a close; that with only nine days left before John L. Lewis president of the United Mine Workers threatens to call the men out of the mines definite material assurance must be given that no serious fuel shortage will result.

TOLERANT NO LONGER

Officials here expressed the belief that the administration had been exfreenely tolerant to both sides in the struggle between operators and miners.

This is not now, however, it was said, the occasion for any more promises or threats; that what the country wants is a guarantee of a fuel supply, and that it is the immediate duty of the administration to fill this need.

It was this situation which

One Ton at a Time Will Be Allowed; Price to Be Set by Administrator

New England will shortly be placed on a wartime basis as regards the use of coal if New England Governors, meeting in conference at the State House today, adopt recommendations made by the Massachusetts Legislative Committee recently returned from the mines, where they made a thorough investigation of conditions.

War time rations means that—

You will be allowed to buy one ton of coal at a time.

You will be governed as to that by an Emergency Fuel Administrator, one in each State.

You will pay for that coal the price set by the coal administrator, not the dealer.

Coal dealers will have on hand just as much coal and no more than the administrator.

Coal in transit between States will be subjected to being seized and distributed as the administration sees fit to relieve emergencies.

If you have more coal than the administrator believes you should have in your cellar it will be taken from you.

WANT LAW RENEWED.

The committee recommended the immediate appointment in each state of a fuel administrator and the renewal of the act passed to relieve the emergency which existed during the war.

The committee further advises that

HEART STOPS, KEPT ALIVE FIVE HOURS

Stratford, Ont., Aug. 23.—One of the most remarkable cases of suspended animation in medical history became known today when physicians announced that seven-year-old Jack R. Leaney had lived for some hours after his pulse had stopped beating for two hours. High stimulant was used when life was apparently extinct. This kept the boy alive for five hours, physicians said, but he died later. He had been suffering from acute bone inflammation.

U. S. AGREES TO FRENCH PARDONS

Coblenz, Aug. 23 (AP).—The United States government having given its consent, the right of pardon and of decreasing the duration of sentences imposed by courtsmartial of the American forces in Germany in the Coblenz bridgehead during the occupancy will henceforth, be exercised by the French military authorities according to the French code.

COOLIDGE ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF BOTH SIDES IN COAL WAR

ADMINISTRATION GOES RIGHT AHEAD WITH FUEL PLANS

prompted President Coolidge to order F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor, to issue a call for a meeting of governors of hard coal consuming States in New York next Tuesday.

Governors of Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Penna., Rhode Island, Vermont and the commissioners of the District of Columbia, were invited to participate or send representatives.

READY TO ACT.

Wadleigh plans to hold this meeting, even though the operators and miners, by some unexpected move, should happen to settle upon a new wage contract today or tomorrow, or before next Tuesday.

So critically is the situation viewed here that it was declared to be the President's belief that the administration must be ready for any contingency and, for the moment, the operators-miners dispute will be forgotten in the efforts to get the substitute distribution plan in smoothest working order.

The basis of the distribution plan, that is, the part which will be handled by the federal government, through the Fuel Distributor and the Interstate Commerce Commission, already has been determined upon.

Wadleigh, under the plan, would have charge of making available for instant delivery, the supplies of substitutes, bituminous, coke and fuel oil, large stocks of all being already on hand.

The Interstate Commerce Commerce Commission would issue priority orders so that coal shipments given preference on railroads, could be expedited to those sections hardest hit by the disqu.

To make more certain that there shall be no hardships, President Coolidge wants the State executives to cooperate fully with the Federal representatives. That is the purpose of the New York meeting.

Mr. Wadleigh, at Mr. Coolidge's direction, will tell the State leaders he wants them to set up individual distribution agencies to sell large coal and in every county, if that is necessary. Then at Federal direction, the substitutes can be prorated to States and distribution can be handled by local authorities who are more conversant with actual needs.

In this way, it is hoped, through accurate daily reports to Washington, to prevent an oversupply to one State and a privation supply to another.

In a general way this is the manner in which the administration has accepted the challenge of operators and miners who have said that the "next move is up to Washington."

Another powerful weapon which the administration may produce is the report of the United States Coal Commission, fixing the blame for the anthracite imbroglio. This while virtually completed has been held in abeyance temporarily, until all reasonable hope for a voluntary settlement has vanished.

If made public by President Coolidge and this depends upon the attitude of miners and operators, it is designed to rally public opinion to the administration. Once public sentiment is united, officials here believe that an "anthracite war" could not long endure, if, even, either operators or miners deliberately decided to brave a strike after having the brand of blame established by the coal commission.

Goethals to Attend for New York State

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23 (I.N.S.).—Governor Smith today designated General George W. Goethals to represent New York State at the next Tuesday's conference of Governors in New York City called by President Coolidge to discuss the coal situation. General Goethals acted as State coal administrator during the emergency last Winter.

GERMAN CATHOLICS IN U. S. AGAINST K. K. K.

Milwaukee, Aug. 23.—Organizations whose programs include anti-Catholic agitation and State laws which prohibit the teaching of German in the public schools were the target of the German Catholic Central Society resolutions passed at the closing session of the national convention. A resolution interpreted as referring to the Ku Klux Klan, stated that the society depreciated the growth of "Un-American organizations parading as super-patriotic in our various states."

HUNT AUTOS THAT RAN TRUCK OFF ROAD

Hartford, Aug. 23.—State police are seeking the drivers of two touring cars, who forced a truck driven by Edward Gurney of No. 187 Main street, Springfield, Mass., off the road and down an embankment on the Berlin turnpike in Newington. Gurey is in Hartford hospital with possible internal injuries. He says the cars shout came toward him at a speed of forty five miles an hour, to avoid a collision he turned out. Neither car stopped

White House Cold, Coolidge Has Steam Turned on

Washington, Aug. 23.—Even thick Yankee blood from the hardy climate of New England shivered in the national capital, and the steam was turned on in the White House heating system for the benefit of the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Tumbling temperature chilled the air to a point where the breath was plainly visible. Gardeners wielding rakes on the White House lawns added another touch of Autumn to the situation.

WARTIME FUEL REGULATIONS FOR N. E.

every town and city in New England be prepared to go into the coal business, if prices get exorbitant.

The committe also recommends in strong terms a boycott on hard coal and charges that a monopoly among miners and operators exists throughout the United States and that both miners and operators are willing and ready to see prices go as high as consumers will allow them to go.

The present price of coal is the result of this monopoly, they said.

PUBLIC IS GOUGED.

Excerpts from the report read:

"We feel that both operators and miners have been and are willing to see the prices of hard coal advance to any extent which the consumers will tolerate, this price advance resulting in higher wages to the miners and increased profits to the operators."

"We believe they will be willing to see price advanced just as long as the consumers will take their product at increased price.

"Among practically all important commodities the prices of which increased during the war anthracite coal is the only product which has failed to decline in price. Cotton goods, woolen goods, shoes, fish and agriculture have all declined in price since the war."

ENCOURAGE HIGH PRICES.

"So long as the people of New England depend almost exclusively on hard coal for home use they are lending encouragement to the exaction of unjust prices and to indifference of both miners and operators as to whether a dependable supply is maintained.

"A boycott would have a tremendous effect in relieving the hard coal shortage."

"The miners are organized. The operators are organized. Let the people of New England organize. Let them serve notice on the hard coal producers, both miners and operators, that if they wish to keep their New England market they must reform their practices and furnish a regular supply at a reasonable price and if they fail in this a boycott will follow."

A boycott, the committee says, will save the people of Massachusetts $25,000,000. It will save the people of New England $50,000,000. These figures are based on the subsitution of soft coal at the market price now in vogue.

Says the report further:

"We have in anthracite coal a product for which the demand exceeds the supply, thus offering an opportunity for the exploitation of the public. The exploitation is further facilitated by industrial conditions in the hard coal district.

"Approximately 80 per cent. of the total supply of hard coal is produced by eight companies. Ninety per cent. of the unmined coal deposits is owned by these companies.

"Meanwhile, on the other side, the miners are all members of a single union—another monopoly, and are thus ideally situated for raising prices to any extent the consumers will suffer."

New England Governors were called into conference primarily to discuss New England railroad conditions, owing to the acuteness of the coal question the subject of railroads was tabled to take up the more important subject.

Crops and Gardens Ruined by Record August Frosts

The telegraph wires were caked with ice as this frigid item moaned over the wire today from Dixon, Ill.:

"Coldest August morning ever known. Mercury below freezing. Thin ice in places. Gardens, flower beds and potato fields seared and blackened by frost; corn badly hurt. Today's record something never before heard of."

Business of shivering appreciatively.

LABOR COSTS ON COAL SHOW SLIGHT DROP

Washington, Aug. 23.—The cost of labor in production of one ton of anthracite increased from $1.02 in 1915 to $3.87 in the first quarter of 1923, the United States Coal Commission announced today in a report giving the result of its exhaustive study into production costs in the hard coal industry.

The report called attention that while labor costs formed 61.6 per cent. of the sales realization price in 1913, they had dropped to 59.5 per cent. in 1923.

Based upon sworn reports from 140 producers, representing 93 per cent. of the total output, the commission's study considered in great detail every phase of the financial side of anthracite production.

Separate analysis were made of operators classed as railroad companies, larger independents and small independents. A final comparison being made of the returns from thirteen companies who supplied comprehensive reports for the January-March period of 1923.

In the case of ten railroad companies, the commission found the labor expense factor to be $3.02 for the first quarter of this year, compared with $3.90 in October-December, 1922; supplies unchanged at 71 cents; General expense 91 cents, compared with 97 cents, and the total "f. o. b. cost" $5.64, compared with $5.48.

With a sales realization of $6.58 per ton, this gave the companies under study a "margin" of $1.04 a ton as compared with $1.01 in the final quarter of last year.

Three representative independents were shown to have paid $4.44 a ton to labor in 1923, against $4.45 in October-December, 1922; $0.69 for supplies against $0.68, and $1.08 for general expenses, instead of $1.07, the total cost of production being $6.32 against $6.20.

With an average sales price of $7.77 this year, the independents received a margin of $1.25 against $1.16 in the fourth quarter of 1922.

With special regard to indicated increase in labor costs, the report said:

"Two important facts should be kept in mind. Only a part of the increase is due to increased wages scales, a part being attributable to the greater amount of labor necessary in later years to produce a ton of coal due to physical changes in the mines, etc.

"Another consideration which applies to inner costs as well as other costs and to sales realization is that the purchasing power of the dollar was much greater in 1913 than in 1923.

"The labor cost each successive year has either equalled or exceeded the previous year, except that, following the strike year, 1922, the labor cost for January-March, 1923, was lower."

ASKS PERMIT FOR BUTTERFLY FARM

Los Angeles, Aug. 23.—An application for permission to establish a butterfly farm on public domain in the Angels Forest reserve has been made by John Hewlett of Redlands. Hewlett plans to plant the entire tract to flowers which butterflies like and raise the insects for decorators.

COOLIDGE AGAIN WARNED TO KEEP 'OUT OF' EUROPE

Washington, Aug. 23.—President Coolidge received further insight into European conditions from two callers who have just returned from abroad.

Solicitor General James M. Beck, who has spent the Summer in France and England, described the European situation as "tragic and menacing." His advice was that America continue to pursue a "hands off" policy.

Beck described France as on a self-sustaining basis agriculturally and industrially, with good crops and very little unemployment. The trouble with France, he said, is its fixed policies. The government is printing more money and issuing more promissory notes than it can ever hope to pay, he declared, and its only hope of making them good is to get its reparations demands of Germany. Mr. Beck sees no immediate prospect of that.

Industrial conditions in England were described by Mr. Beck as discouraging. The unemployment pensions system England adopted, after the war, has served to encourage idleness and is retarding the country's return to a normal basis, he said. Too many people are living on the bounty of the government, adding to the burden of those who are producing.

Irving T. Bush, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, gave the President his observations of conditions in Russia. He declared himself against recognition of the Soviet Government, but advocated the establishment of contracts. He described Russia as going through the process of recovering from a destructive and turning to a constructive condition. He advised against sending any more trade commissions to Russia.

WALES WILL WED LADY THYNNE

One of Lady Mary's sisters married the sixth Marquis of Northampton, while another is the wife of the Hon. Oliver H. Stanley, a son of Lord Sheffield.

STEEPLEJACK GIRL SMOKES ON JOB

New York, Aug. 23.—Clad in paint-smeared smock, white linen trousers, white shoes and stockings, Miss Wilhelmina Schmidt of Denmark climber the steeple on St. Mark's Church in the Bowery today to do cement fresco work on the structure.

Her titian hair, unbobbed, was restrained by a broad band of silk. From her lips dangled a cork-tipped cigarette which she had paused in her ascent of the towering scaffold to light from a match scratched man fashion.

"I never was dizzy in my life," she remarked.

Miss Schmidt, a student of the Royal Academy of Copenhagen, came to this country three years ago from Denmark. The reputation her frescoes gained in New York won her the contract for decorating the towering spire.

"Why should people gather in the street to stare?" she asked. "I always smoke when I work. European girls think nothing of a puff when they feel like it, and I notice American girls smoke over their coffee cups.

"What difference does it make whether the puff is taken on the tympanum of a church or in some Broadway restaurant?"

TWO REVERE PLANES LOSE REGISTRATION

For the second time within a week Registrar Frank A. Goodwin suspended the registration of a plane owned by the Atlantic Aero Corporation of No. 19 Lexington street, Lynn. In the latest instance the action was taken because of the failure of the company to report damage occurring to a plane on June 16. The other plane to lose its registration was the one operated by John Laughlin, which figured in the crash off Revere last Friday, in which a woman passenger was hurt.

CHILD NEED NOT FACE ALLEGED ATTACKER

Grace Drew, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Drew of 144 Howard street, Melrose, who was abducted and attacked, it is alleged by William F. App of No. 21 Fifth street, Wellington district of Medford, about three weeks ago will not have to take the stand against the man. This announcement was made in Salem. It is the desire of the government to spare her the ordeal of testifying in court against App.

PANIC AT FIRE AVERTED

MISS SALLY KOSHOK

One hundred and fifty girls were forced to flee for their lives when fire broke out in the six-story factory at Nos. 347-51 Cambridge street, West End.

Most of the girls who fled were employed on the fifth and sixth floors. At the outbreak Miss Sally Koshok, bookkeeper for the Royal Paper Box Company, took the books and accounts of the firm to safety, and assisted in getting the other girls from the building.

Fire started on the first floor of the building, occupied, together with the second and third floors, by the Royal Paper Box Company.

Smoke from the highly inflammable material quickly filled the building and made escape difficult.

Factory foremen and police prevented panic and possible loss of life only by quick and stern measures.

At the first sign of smoke, groups of girls on the upper stories, fearing they were shut off from escape, rushed screaming for the stairways and elevators. They were met on the landings by officials who assured them there was plenty of time for all to leave the building, and compelled the girls to walk out in orderly fashion.

Baldwin to Meet Poincare in Paris

EXCHANGE OF NOTES FUTILE

British Premier Therefore Decides on Personal Discussion of Reparations Issue

London, Aug. 23 (A.P.) — recognizing the futility of a further exchange of lengthy notes on the reparation issue Prime Minister Baldwin has decided to meet Premier Poincare in Paris upon the former's return from his vacation at Aix-Les-Bains, it became known today.

The British premier will not formally ask his French colleague for an appointment, but will make known quietly through second parties his readiness to discuss the whole reparation problem in the light of the French premier's latest note.

Boys Ask Holyoke Mayor to Punish Kite Cutter

Holyoke, Aug. 23.—Five boys from seven to twelve years of age walked into Mayor Cronin's office and lodged complaint against an employe of the Farr Alpaca Company.

Daniel Cavanaugh, thirteen years old, of No. 95 Jackson street, was the spokesman.

He told the Mayor that the boys had made a kite which they were flying near the new mill of the Farr Alpaca Company, and that a workman on the roof cut the string of the kite, with the result that they lost it. They insisted on the Mayor taking action against the man.

Mayor Cronin restored peace when he gave the youngsters 50 cents with the understanding that they were to buy a new kite from the donation.

HUB DOCTOR DROWNED IN LAKE

E. G. Seybold Sinks While Bathing in Eight Feet of Water

Westboro, Aug. 23.—Dr. Erwin G. Seybold of the Peter B. Brigham Hospital, 120 Park Hill avenue, Boston, was drowned at Lake Chauncey while in bathing in eight feet of water.

Seybold came to Westboro in an automobile with Dr. James Greene and Dr. C. K. Coonse, and assistant superintendent Miss Christie for an outing. Members of the party were getting supper ready on the shore of the lake when Dr. Seybold went in bathing.

He had been in the water only a short time when he threw up his hands and called for help. The two doctors went to his assistance but were unable to find the body. Physicians were summoned from Westboro, together with the pulmotor from the Westboro Fire Department.

The body was recovered at 8 o'clock with grappling irons near where Dr. Seybold went down.

Dr. Seybold, who was 33 years old, was graduated this year from Harvard Medical School. His home is in Forest Junction, Wis. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1920.

MOVIE CAMERA MEN BARRED FROM LOUVRE

Paris, Aug. 23 (AP)—Baron de Constant, director general of the French National Museums, has instructed the curators of the Louvre not to permit a comparison of Mrs. Andree Hahn's painting, "La Belle Ferronniere" with the recognized original by Leonardo da Vinci.

Baron de Constant gave as his reason the preparations made to receive motion picture photographers and correspondents who are to invade the Louvre on September 1.

Mrs. Hahn, who hopes comparison will prove her painting to be a genuine da Vinci, now only has recourse to Leon Berard, Minister of Fine Arts. He alone has authority to overrule the director general.

LOYAL TYPIST WEDS 'MARRYING BROKER'

RE-MARRY IN STRANGE TRIANGLE

Esther Marie Tatnall, New York typist, who has just become the legal wife of Herbert Thornton Andrews, ex-Quincy man, known as the "marrying broker." She had previously been his bigamous mate. Their legal wedding followed Andrews' release from Sing Sing. Inset is Mr. Andrews. (Photo by International News Reel.)

LOSES WIFE'S LOVE, MAN WANTS $3,000

Keene, N. H., Aug. 23.—Suit has been instituted by Francis E. Pearse of this city against Walter Hayden in $3,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. The action is returnable at the October term of the Superior Court to be held here.

EX-QUINCY MAN KEEPS VOW IN ODD TRIANGLE

Herbert Thornton Andrews, the New York "marrying broker," who once spent five months at Deer Island, lived in Quincy and managed a Ide Boston department store, also clerked in a Boston bank, and who just left Sing Sing after serving a sentence for larceny, has married the little stenographer who stuck to him through thick and thin.

She is Esther Marie Tatnall, formerly of Pittsburgh.

She is beautiful.

In 1921 she was living with Andrews in Jersey City. He had performed a bigamous marriage with her in Connecticut.

Under the name Jersey roof lived Andrews' first wife, formerly Mrs Maud Aarseth Haynes, of Portland, Me., and her two crippled children. Andrews called one "mother" and the other "sweetie." You can guess which was which as the Maine woman was ten years his senior.

GIRL STOOD BY HIM.

When police arresting Andrews for larceny from a client of the Andrews brokerage house in Wall street revealed the triangle the public was astounded. Esther had gone to the Andrews' office daily working as a stenographer. When the man she had once believed her lawfully wedded husband was convicted and sent to Sing Sing her love did not wane. She visited him three times a week.

Monday that faith was rewarded when Andrews married her in Bogota, N. J., his Maine wife having since his imprisonment divorced him. The new marriage became known today. The couple are in New York.

When the triangle was revealed two years back Andrews' real wife exclaimed that "but for the need of her to care for her crippled children she would use a shot gun on the stenographer."

WAS JAILED BY MISTAKE.

As to Andrews' imprisonment at Deer Island it was a mistake. He was falsely convicted for forgery. After serving five months, the error was discovered and Andrews was released. This was in 1913. Andrews had lived for three years at No. 39 Palmer street, Quincy, his Maine wife and her children with him. They had previously lived at No. 87 Hemenway street, Back Bay.

It wasn't until he entered the brokerage business in New York and began to make money that Andrews got into what he once termed, a "deuce of a pickle."

HEAVY LOSS CAUSED BY BIG FLOOD

Southern Colorado Inundated by Breaking of Reservoir in Arkansas Valley

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 23.—The Los Angeles Limited, which left Denver at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, crossed the Santa Fe railroad bridge near Fowler at 9 o'clock, only a few minutes before the flood waters began to menace the structure. At 10:30 o'clock the water was five feet above the floor of the bridge and covered the Santa Fe tracks for a distance of one mile.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 23.—Fertile farms and ranches in the Arkansas Valley in Southeastern Colorado experienced one of the worst floods in recent years today when an immense irrigation reservoir on the Apishapa River north of Fowler cracked and precipitated a great rush of water down the valley.

The reservoir built two years ago by farmers of the valley, was more than 100 feet deep and had a storage capacity sufficient to irrigate 20,000 acres. It drains a 90-mile watershed, but recent rains and cloudbursts imposed too great a strain on the structure and part of it gave way.

A wall of water from ten to twenty feet high rushed down the valley. The break had been foreseen, however, and telephone warnings had been sent out so that residents in the path of the flood had time to escape to higher ground. No loss of life has been reported.

The loss in livestock will be considerable and great damage to farms, farm buildings, crops and highways resulted. The total loss is placed at $1,000,000. The famous Rock Ford cantaloupe belt was practically destroyed.

As the wall of water rushed onward it spread out until it covered a course from two to three miles wide. The inundated area was approximately fifty miles long. Fears were expressed that La Junta and other valley towns would be inundated.

EX-CITIZEN OF U. S. NOW ENGLISH LORD

New York, Aug. 23.—Charles Ernest Pellew, 59 years old, an American citizen and ex-professor at Columbia University, sailed with his bride on the France to claim his seat in the British House of Lords as seventh Viscount Exmouth. Both will renounce their American citizenship. The new peeress, also American born, was Miss Mabel Gray of this city, daughter of the late Richard Gray, general traffic manager of the Southern Pacific Railroad in California.

GOING UP IN PLANES TO SEE SUN'S ECLIPSE

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 23.—To prevent clouds or fog interfering with observations of the sun's total eclipse September 10, the War and Navy Departments have issued orders to Major Henry Arnold, commanding Rockwell Field, and Captain Thomas Marshall, commanding the fleet air squadrons, to have airplanes and seaplanes in readiness. The aircraft will take the visiting astronomers and other scientists aloft to an altitude where the phenomenon can be viewed without such interference.

IDENTIFIES POISON VICTIM AS CHARLESTOWN WOMAN

The twenty-three-year-old girl who was taken to the City Hospital suffering from poisoning, was identified as Mrs. Gertrude Helen Chiarkos of No. 31 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown. At the time she was taken to the hospital she gave her maiden name, Gertrude Haggerty. Her condition at the hospital was said to be serious. She was taken to the institution from a Dover street restaurant, where she went to take a quantity of the poison she had previously bought at a neighboring drug store. The girl was married to Peter Chiarkos of Medford five years ago, but left her husband to live with her mother last Winter.

FOOD QUERY DEPARTMENT

YOUR FOOD PURCHASING DIFFICULTIES SOLVED

A THURSDAY FEATURE

Are you at a loss as to where you can secure some particular brand or kind of foodstuffs? If so, write the Boston American Food Query Editor. We will answer your inquiry in these columns as quickly as possible.

Food Query Editor:

Since moving to Boston I have hunted high and low trying to locate a place where I can purchase Oswego brand of canned vegetables and fruits. These goods are put up in New York State and they are very delicious. I will consider it quite a favor if you could inform me where I could secure same here in Boston.

MRS. E. B. J.

Dedham, Mass.

You can buy the Oswego brand of canned fruits and vegetables at either Houghton & Dutton Grocery Department or John Gilbert, Jr., Company, No. 120 Boylston street.

Food Query Editor:

We have just moved East and noticed your column and thought perhaps you might be able to give me some information as to where I could locate a certain brand of flour that I have been using for some time with great success in my home town. I suppose that if this brand of flour is sold in Boston I could locate same by going from store to store, but this I am trying to avoid. Bridal flour is the name and it is put up by the Niagara Falls Milling Company of Buffalo, N. Y. If there is such a brand sold on this market, would appreciate hearing where it could be obtained. Thanking you, I remain,

MRS. D. B. V.

Dorchester, Mass.

You can obtain the Bridal Veil Flour at any of the Connor's Breakside stores, as these people have over 100 stores and they are so well distributed you, no doubt, have one of these stores handy to your home.

Food Query Editor:

Please excuse this rather personal question. I am a lover of onions, but when dining out hesitate in ordering them owing to the rather repulsive after effect on the breath. Is there any food or drink which I might order to counteract or kill the taste and smell of onions?

MISS E. C.

Somerville, Mass.

Your query is a little bit out of my line, but I would suggest you try a couple of glasses of milk after eating your onions and you, no doubt, will be greatly relieved of the onion odor on your breath.

Food Query Editor:

Is head cheese obtainable during the Summer months? Does it spoil quickly in the hot weather?

Newton, Mass. M. G.

Head cheese is not a Summer commodity, as the old-fashioned head cheese is generally put up in a cylinder mould and held together with jelly, and as there is nothing to hold the jelly together in warm weather it is naturally not seasonable. You can, however, obtain head cheese put up in casings, but as a lover of the old-fashioned product I am afraid this will not satisfy you.

Food Query Editor:

Have you ever heard of Danahy's hams and bacon put up by the Danahy Packing Company, Buffalo, N. Y.? I do not remember the name of the brand these goods were under. In Providence I used to purchase this product from the public market, but I have not been successful in locating them in Boston. I can assure you that both the ham and bacon are very delicious and I am very anxious to have them on my table once again.

MRS. M. C.

Cambridge Mass.

You can buy Danahy's Easter brand of hams and bacon at L. M. Dyer & Co., 2 Faneuil Hall Market; Manhattan Market, Cambridge; Childs Pynn & Co., New Faneuil Hall Market.

Food Query Editor:

As I am a native of California, I naturally prefer California sardines. I have made inquiries in several stores here for same, but have only been able to get California sardines packed in mustard. What I want is sardines packed in olive oil. I would appreciate it greatly if you could tell me where the above could be located.

MRS. J. F.

Newton Centre, Mass.

You can purchase California sardines packed in pure olive oil at any of the Cobb, Bates & Yerxa stores or S. S. Pierce stores.

NEIGHBORS SAVE AGED WOMAN IN LYNN FIRE

An aged woman was rescued and her husband was burned about the head in a fire in a house at No. 28 Jackson street, Lynn. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

The burned man was George Trull, seventy years old, occupant of the first floor of the house. He crawled into the house from the yard after discovering the fire and carried out several Liberty Bonds and a receipted tax bill. Neighbors carried out Trull's invalid wife, who is also seventy years old.

The fire is believed to have started in a pile of rubbish near a stairway. The tenement above that of Trull, occupied by George McFadden and his family, was also damaged.

MISSING MAN DEAD, STRANGER PHONES KIN

The police of Cambridge are searching for the man who telephoned Miss Helen Canada of No. 118 Fallsweather street, Cambridge, that the body of her brother-in-law, David Canada, who has been missing for various weeks, could be found in a clump of bushes "at the end of a car line in Lynn."

Meanwhile the Lynn police, at the request of Miss Canada, are searching Lynn and its outskirts in the hope of finding the body of the missing man.

Miss Canada said her informant gave the name of Harry Werien of Cambridge. The police say they have a clew to his whereabouts.

Large Brown Bear and Cub Cause Lawrence Scare

Lawrence, Aug. 23.—Residents of the section adjacent to Welch's Pond are perturbed over reports that a large brown bear and its cub have been seen near the pond.

Bruin and its offspring were first seen by a woman autoist who on first sight mistook the animals for "large dogs." Second glance convinced the woman that she had better not loiter long in the section.

The bears were again seen by a group of small boys, who also neglected to stop and investigate, but made swift tracks for home.

NAVY TO PROBE GUNBOAT SINKING

Washington, Aug. 23—A naval board of inquiry probably will sit on the sinking of the gunboat Gopher during a storm in St. Lawrence Bay, near Montreal, it was indicated here.

Lawrence, Aug. 23.—Frank Worak, proprietor of a near beer shop at No. 93 South Union street, resisted being arrested by William J. Sullivan, federal revenue officer. Their arms interlocked and the pair rolled down a long flight of stairs into the basement of the house. The alleged purchase by the federal man of a pint of liquor and two drinks occasioned the incident. The Federal officials were first driven to the street under a shower of beer bottles thrown by a person in the shop at the time. Some of the bottles were picked up unbroken by boys and handed to the revenue man.

CHAUFFEUR MUNDIA SAYS WARD ADMITTED SLAYING OF PETERS

CONFESSED ON NIGHT OF CRIME

Testimony Before Grand Jury Made Public; Says Ward Threatened to Kill Him

New York, Aug. 24—A description of an early morning meeting with Walter S. Ward a few hours after he had shot Clarence Peters. An admission of his friendship with Ward, Peters, Charley Ross and Jack Rogers and a statement that the killing of Peters was planned by Ward in advance, all went to make up the startling story told by William Mundia to the Ward Grand Jury.

Mundia, a chauffeur, now held in the Harlem prison on a larceny charge, was one of the secret witnesses introduced by the attorney general to the grand jury which recently indicted Ward for murder in the first degree.

Great care has been exercised in keeping Mundia incommunicado in various prisons.

For the first time the astounding tale of this man, who claims an intimate relationship with all the principals in the Peters killing, became public in detail when the Ward attorneys gave out parts of the grand jury minutes.

SAW WARD WITH WOMAN.

Mundia claims he was introduced to Ward in Cushman's cabaret in Greenwich Village. He claims that on numerous occasions he saw Ward there in the company of women.

He also says he became a close friend of Ward and many times was entertained by Ward at Greenwich Village resorts.

On several occasions in his testimony, Mundia contradicted himself. He was unable, according to the jury minutes, to name any person who might corroborate his statements.

Mundia claims that about 2 a. m., May 16, 1922, he left New York in an automobile for Troy to purchase four cases of whiskey. He testified that at 4 o'clock, on 214th street, between White Plains road and Hutchland avenue, he noticed the Ward coupe approaching.

He stopped under a street lamp and the coupe halted. Mundia says he walked over to the coupe and found Ward sitting in it. Mundia pulled his gun when Ward made a move for his hack pocket. He repeated the following as a conversation between himself and Ward.

OFFERED HIM A CHECK.

"I'll give it to you as I gave it to that other skunk."

"Who is the other skunk?"

"Your friend, Peters."

Then, Mundia claims, Ward offered him a check to keep quiet. Mundi says he refused to accept the check and both cars proceeded on their way.

Under questioning by members of the jury and the Attorney-General, Mundia enlarged upon his friendship with Ward. He declared he had seen Ward in a negro cabaret in the "Black Belt." He said he had also seen Ward with Peters in Cushman's. Then Mundia told of how he had met Peters.

He claimed that he had seen Ward with Peters about a week before the killing. He told of his own friendship with Peters. He said that he met Peters on a pier on West street, where they both worked together.

"ASSASSINS" BALK.

Never before in the case has there been any mention of Peters working in New York city.

Mundia then went on to say that Ross and Rogers, the men of mystery who are supposed to have been with Ward when he killed Peters, were also his friends. They had told him, he declared, that Ward wanted them to kill Peters.

They agreed to do this, according to Mundia, and collected their pay for it. Then when the time came, they refused and Ward himself did the killing, Mundia says Ross and Rogers told him.

Mundia, although claiming to have been on intimate terms with Ward, could not accurately describe him. Numerous other contradictory details in his story caused a member of the jury to imply that Mundia's knowledge of the case was gained by reading the newspapers. Mundia denied this.

The Ward attorneys laid stress on Mundia's criminal record. The witness claimed to have maintained an apartment at a New York city address and said Ward was a frequent visitor there. Ward's lawyers say Mundia had no such apartment.

WILL NOT TESTIFY

Mundia, since giving his testimony, has written a letter to the Ward Legal Cabinet. In this Mundia says that he will not testify against Ward if called to court. The letter in part follows:

"I was subpoenaed to appear in White Plains the 12th of September, but I don't want to appear against him, because he was good to me to a certain extent. I would rather go and do six months for contempt of court than testify against him.

"I have sent the subpoena back to them and have stated that I positively will refuse to testify at the trial.

"I am supposed to be a valuable witness for the State. But now, on thinking it over, I have decided not to testify."

Mundia told the Ward attorneys that he was willing to tell them all he had told the Ward Grand Jury.

Special Deputy Attorney General Thomas O'Neill issued a statement in which he said that any information concerning the grand jury minutes must come from the Ward attorneys.

He expressed a belief that they would be very careful to make all of the testimony public.

The Ward attorneys have assured newspapermen that as fast as copies of the various parts of the minutes are printed they would be furnished.

It is expected that tomorrow the Ward legal forces will make a motion before Justice Taylor in White Plains asking that the indictment against Ward be dismissed or reduced to one of manslaughter. Judge Taylor said he would issue a show cause order if requested to do so.

CRIPPLED 'NEWSIES' TURN MINSTRELS

WILL EARN WAY ACROSS CONTINENT

Herbert Levine (left), sightless violinist, and Manuel Bender, with but one leg, plan to walk all the way to Sunny California. Both are newsboys and great boosters for the Boston American as the best seller in New England. While Herbert plays violin accompaniments Manuel will sing popular ballads and they expect to earn enough to provide the necessaries of life as they plod toward the Golden Gate.

TWO NEWSBOYS BEGIN HIKE TO THE PACIFIC

The day of the troubadour is gone, O. Henry said, but it's not so.

The spark of the wandering minstrel is still alive in the hearts of two Boston newsies—vendors of the Boston American—who today will set forth on a pilgrimage which will take them all the way across the continent.

The boys are Manuel Bender and Herbert Levine. Manuel lives at No. 19 Upton street, and Herbert at No. 84 West Rutland square, both South End. Some time ago a misfortune came along and Manuel lost his right leg. Herbert's eyes went back on him.

You need both your legs and both your eyes to sell papers—it's a highly strenuous and competitive business.

But Manuel has a good singing voice, and Herbert can play the violin. That's what determined them to start their troubadour tour. They'll sing and play their way across the continent, starting with a joint capital of no dollars and no cents, and expecting to take a year in the trip.

This morning they went to the Mayor's office and obtained a letter from him, and they will visit Mayors in each city and get letters.

COURT CLERK IN SALEM IS DEAD

Salem, Aug. 23.—James P. Hale, for 36 years assistant clerk of the superior court, died at the Salem Hospital. He had been ailing for some time. He was treasurer of the Tabernacle Church. He was born in Salem, Sept. 1, 1858. He leaves a widow, a brother, Rev. Harris G. Hale, of Brookline, and two sons, Warren, of the New Hampshire State forestry service, and James H. Hale.

FROSTS IN NEW ENGLAND FIND COAL BINS SHY

Light frosts were reported in Northern New England early today, and many eyes turned apprehensively to empty coal bins.

While temperatures in the vicinity of Boston are reported not to have dropped below 50 degrees, the cold wave which yesterday struck the Central Plains states drifted down the St. Lawrence River and tinged Northern New England with a light coat of frost.

Continued fair weather with slightly rising temperature is predicted for the Metropolitan district today.

Central Plains States' temperatures are interesting and give a hint of what New England may expect. Omaha, Neb., reported 48 degrees, Sioux City, Ia., 43 degrees, the coldest temperatures for the corresponding day in 48 years. Duluth, Minn., reported 32 degrees (freezing) in the rural districts. The city temperature was 41 degrees.

No damage was done to crops by frost in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, where the thermometer reached the lowest points. Drops of 20 to 25 degrees in the gulf and South Atlantic States, followed a few hours after moderate Summer weather. Oklahoma and Kansas which last week sweltered with temperatures near 100, experienced another extreme when the mercury dropped 40 degrees.

Flocks of migrating purple martins and teal reported flying southward over Chicago, were said to indicate an early Winter.

CUMMINS IN LINE FOR SENATE HEAD

Washington, Aug. 23.—Senator Albert S. Cummins of Iowa has the best chance of being elected president pro tem of the Senate, according to well-informed opinion among senators. The election will be held when reorganization of the Senate takes place in December. With the Vice-Presidency vacant, the office of President pro tem carries a salary of $12,000 a year, which is an increase of $4,500 over that now paid to senators. In addition to this increase the occupant of the office has the use of the Vice-President's automobile.

KLAN SCORED BY CATHOLIC CONCLAVE

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23—Profiteering, the spirit of greed, and inflation of credit and currency are condemned in a resolution on social questions adopted by the Roman Catholic Central Society at the closing session of its 67th annual convention.

The Ku Klux Klan and similar organizations are denounced in a resolution which deprecates the "continual growth and spread of an un-American organization parading as super-patriotic."

REPLOGLE RESIGNS POST IN VANADIUM

J. Leonard Replogle resigned as president and chairman of executive committee of Vanadium Corporation of America. His resignation was accepted at directors' meeting. CHARLESTOWN MAN DIES OF INJURIES

Robert J. Ward, of No. 26 Cottage street, Charlestown, died from injuries received early Wednesday morning at Summer street bridge, Ward and Mystic street, Arlington, when the automobile he was driving collided with a Ward Baking Company truck. He passed away in Symmes Hospital, Arlington as a result of his injuries.

HEARST EXPOSE STARTS DRIVE ON FAKE STOCK

Washington, Aug. 23.—The Department of Justice has launched a drive to put a host of fake stock salesmen in jail.

The work is in charge of Attorney-General Crim, who has just completed a visit to Federal Courts throughout the nation and arrange for the round-up.

Dockets will be cleaned up pending cases and new indictments will be immediately sought on a large number of complaints. In order to expedite the necessary litigation Federal judges and attorneys have agreed to work every day until the task is completed.

It is admitted that the Federal investigation on which the prosecutions will be based was prompted by the activities of the Hearst newspapers in revealing that millions have been lost through bucket shops and fake stock concerns.

In every Federal district the dockets are littered with oil fraud cases. The offenders are enjoying liberty because other matters have prevented their cases coming to trial, it was said. Attorney-General Crim arranged with judges to go from one circuit to another, as assigned, so that the wheels of justice will grind continually.

Cambridge Mayor Asked to Plant Elm Successor

Mayor Quinn of Cambridge has received requests from persons in many parts of the country that when the dead elm in Cambridge under which Washington took command of the Continental Army, is cut down, it be replaced by a new one.

Samuel Chambers, a Baltimore schoolboy, who asserts relationship to George Washington, wrote to Mayor Quinn, expressing his regret at the death of the tree, and requesting that a small piece of wood be sent to him as a souvenir.

HAIR IS BOBBED; LASSIE MUST EXPLAIN

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Captain Mildred Olsen, 26, of the Salvation Army, who served in France during the World War, today was enroute to Lake George, N. Y., in answer to a summons to appear before Commander Evangeline Booth for a ruling whether bobbed hair constitutes a breach of the discipline of the organization. Captain Olsen, who is an expert swimmer, had her hair bobbed because it interfered with her diving.

Salvation Army officials here recalled that during the war Mary Booth, niece of Commander Evangeline Booth had her hair bobbed in France and was ordered by General Brinwell Booth to remain in Paris until it grew long again.

AGED MAN SLAIN AFTER KILLING DAUGHTER

Benton Harbor, Mich., Aug. 23.—Henry Rector, who shot John Garrett his aged father-in-law, to death after the latter, in a fit of insanity, had killed Rector's wife, is still at large.

The slain man, seventy-four years old, it is believed, became demented over the prospect of having to leave the homestead, wherein he had lived nearly all of his life. Arrangements had been made to send Garrett to the home of a son in Hinsdale, Ill.

Garrett suddenly seized a shot gun and fired at his daughter, killing her instantly. When his son-in-law sought to wrest the weapon from him, Garrett attacked Rector with a pitchfork, wounding him seriously. In self-defense, Rector seized a rifle and shot Garrett.

BUSINESS MEN ACCUSED OF BLACKLISTING EX-PHONE GIRLS

STATE PROBE OF 'LOCKOUT' DEMANDED

Former telephone operators throughout New England, refused employment by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company since the settlement of the operators' strike, allege a rigid lockout is being enforced against them by employers other than the telephone company.

John H. McAuliffe, representing fifty-three of the former Lawrence operators, conferred with the Public Utilities Commission in Boston and placed before the Commission a demand that the Lawrence situation be investigated.

LAWRENCE CONFERENCE.

Today telephone company and Lawrence city officials will confer in an effort to reach some definite understanding as to what shall be done in the matter of re-employing the former operators.

According to the former operators, not only is the door closed to them in all Lawrence employment bureaus, but telephone operators from other cities are being brought to Lawrence to complete the personnel at the switchboards.

MARLBORO UNION ACTS.

The Marlboro Central Labor Union has appointed a committee to ask the Marlboro Board of Aldermen to use its influence in finding employment for former operators who have been refused employment by the telephone company.

None of the sixteen Marlboro operators who joined the strike have been re-employed by the company.

The Providence Town Council held a lengthy session during which the telephone service in Rhode Island, and in Providence in particular, was held up to ridicule and scorn.

FIRE ALARMS DELAYED.

Every member of the council had a definite complaint to make. President James W. Walsh termed the service "abominable,—poorer than before the strike." Councilman Henry W. Peterson, of the committee on firemen, cited instances when it had required twenty minutes to turn in a fire alarm.

The council voted to instruct the clerk to send a formal protest to the Public Utilities Commission and a letter of protest to the Providence manager of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company. It was also voted to send an additional letter to the company asking that a special line be installed for the chief of the fire department, which Councilman Peterson said had been promised by the telephone company since June 1.

Vienna—The congress of orthodox Jews has adopted a resolution requesting President Coolidge to relax the conditions imposed upon Jewish immigration by the United States.

SHE CRITICISED HOTEL FOOD AND OWNER HIT HER

Sulvan Beach, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Her jaw still swollen, as a result, it is alleged, of the clouting ability of William Russell, hotel proprietor, Mrs. T. W. Edgar, wife of a noted New York physician, was confined to Cavera Hospital today.

Russell is at liberty under bonds of $1000, and promises sensational testimony at the hearing.

It is understood, Dr. Edgar, said to be on a fishing trip with Police Commissioner Enright of New York and Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator elect, has been notified and is hurrying to his wife's side.

According to Mrs. M. P. Lamphrey, mother of Mrs. Edgar, the trouble started when her daughter criticized the food at Russell's hotel, where they were stopping. Then followed a dispute and Mrs. Edgar was ordered out.

Later Russell came to their abode, and remarking: "I've come to smash your jaw," proceeded right earnest to attempt it.

Seven Nationalities Feature Wedding of Spanish Cook

Lawrence, Aug. 23.—Seven nationalities and the waiving of the five-day clause featured the wedding of Rufino Guinea, Spanish cook, and Ida Tanner, Swiss, of Summer street, Methuen. Ida had Rufino arrested, but the pair became reconciled and displayed a mutual willingness to wed, after the bridegroom had been brought here from Boston.

The newly-made husband, a Spaniard, was hailed by an Italian undertaker, hired a Boston Hebrew lawyer, took a Swiss girl for his wife, who had for her bridesmaid a Polish girl friend. The deciding power in the case was of Irish extraction, and a Yankee minister of Methuen tied the knot.

DE VALERA'S WIFE UNABLE TO FIND HIM

MAIMED VETS GUARDED FROM DOPE PEDLARS

Washington, Aug. 23.—Activities of drug pedlars and bootleggers in the vicinity of Government hospitals for former service men will be stamped out by the combined efforts of Federal and local authorities, Director Hines of the Veterans Bureau announced.

General Hines emphasized the point that an energetic campaign is being conducted not merely to break up the illegal traffic where it exists, but to prevent its establishment elsewhere.

All law enforcement agencies, the general said, are co-operating in the campaign.

"It is a serious matter," Director Hines said. "Men receiving treatment for tuberculosis can, in a few hours, overcome the work of months of care.

"Narcotics and bootleg liquor seem to travel together. Wherever we find them now, we get quick action. We are looking ahead by adopting preventive measures with the aid of other Federal agencies and State and local authorities."

"Ether Drunk" Even Has New York Policeman Staggering

New York, Aug. 23.—The ticket agent of the Houston street elevated station saw a man striding up and down the platform with a gait like a slow motion picture. He called Patrolman James Scully.

Scully took the walker to the station house, and when they got there Scully himself was beginning to feel like a twilight sleep.

In the man's inside pocket they found an open bottle of ether, the fumes of which poured up from the pocket to his nostrils. In another pocket there was a pound can of ether unopened.

The police said many cases of "ether drunks" have been dragged in since prohibition took effect.

Garrant's acquittal was received by a storm of applause from the spectators who packed the council chamber, a large number of whom were women.

Garrant's bride of four months rushed into the council chamber and she embraced her husband. Officer Garrant will return to his beat tonight and will receive all back pay while he was under suspension.

MISS ELDREDGE TO QUIT FILMS FOR STAGE

FLORENCE ELDREDGE just cannot keep away from the legitimate stage. She has been an industrious member of the cast making the picture version of "Six Cylinder Love," but now announces that she will not remain in pictures. Miss Eldredge will begin rehearsals soon in a new play in which she has been selected for the leading feminine role. It will be done on Broadway during the Autumn.

Florence Eldredge

ENID BENNETT will have a highly variegated role in her new picture, "Strangers of the Night." She appears first as a demure English girl, but before the story is run she will swing a wicked cutlass as a bold pirate lad. Miss Bennett admits that she likes melodrama — lurid melodrama—and in "Strangers of the Night" she is bathed in its wild and weird sensations.

Enid Bennett

HELENE CHADWICK has had a nice long rest from picture making toil, but the vacation is nearly over, as she has been selected by Rupert Hughes for the leading role in his "Law Against Law," which is about ready for production. It will be a story about divorce, centring on divergent laws for this social evil in the different States.

Frances Smith Among Dublin Summer Colony, Betty Alden Reports

By BETTY ALDEN

AMONG the foremost members numbered at the Dublin, N. H., artist colony are Joseph Lindon Smith, the noted mural artist and his family. Miss Frances Smith, his petite brunette daughter, was presented at a ball given last December at the Hotel Somerset.

It will be remembered that an additional sensation of this event were the striking decorations designed by her famous father, whose facile hand likewise sounded the artistic keynote for the debut of Miss Rebecca Smith. And, by the way, pretty blonde-haired Rebecca seems to be upholding the artistic traditions of the family in fine fashion. She has but recently returned from China with her father. Doubtless this trip to the "land of the rising sun" will afford excellent material for pictures to come. Her talent has executed many worth-while pictures already, two of which are to be hung at the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts.

VIVACIOUS Louisa Weld, whose sister, Teresa, does wonderful skating stunts, has been in Switzerland and France with a party of friends since the early part of June. Rumor hath it that the expedition is not entirely a pleasure jaunt, but that Miss Louisa is spending a good part of her store of well-known pep in selecting the trousseau for her wedding in October.

MR. AND MRS. NEIL W. RICE (Emma H. Mandell), and their children, Charles G. Rice, 2d, and Emily P. Rice, have been staying since last June at "Turner Hill Farm," Ipswich, the home of Mr. Rice's parents, the Charles G. Rices. The Neil Rices will return to their home in Wenham next week. During their absence from it the house, known as "Pine Grove Farm," has been completely remodeled and is said to present some charming new features in decorative art.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT JACQUES, JR. (Mary Townsend), and children of Boston, and formerly of Marblehead, have been in town this Summer until the first of the month when they took a cottage on Smith's Point, Manchester. Previous to this, the cottage was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sohier who are on a visit to Maine with Mr. Sohier's father, Colonel William D. Sohier.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

THAT OLD BUGABOO—URIC ACID

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
(Former President of the American Medical Association)

"I HAVE uric acid disease."

"I am the victim of the uric acid diathesis."

"I'm having the uric acid boiled out of me."

Dr. Reed.

These are expressions which physicians often hear from their patients who come with a ready-made diagnosis. They are especially heard about health resorts, and great bathing establishments. They represent an idea that has taken deep hold upon the popular mind.

The people who entertain this idea generally are afflicted now and then, or sometimes very persistently, with pains in their feet or legs, in their joints, especially of the toes and fingers or they have neuralgias and sciaticas, and such like ailments.

Now let us look at this uric acid business.

Of course there is such a thing as uric acid.

It is manufactured in the human system in the process of wear and tear of the machinery and, consequently, is a normal waste product. With other waste products, it is carried out of the system through the secretions of, more particularly, the kidneys and the skin.

The amount of uric acid in the secretions is an index, one index, of the wear and tear of the tissues.

In a person in good health there is a minimum of uric acid under conditions of rest, pleasure, etc., and a maximum under extreme conditions of labor, stress, worry, fright, anger or other exhausting emotions.

The same laws of physical life with respect to uric acid production obtain not only in health but in disease.

Any disease-producing influence causes increased wear and tear of the tissues and consequently overcoming this formation of uric acid. When the disease-producing influence—the cause—is overcome, the effect—the uric acid formation—subsides to normal.

Under certain conditions, however, when the cause cannot be overcome this formation of uric acid is in excess of the capacity of the kidneys and skin to carry it off. Then it accumulates in the system and causes serious and sometimes fatal complications.

But, you will have noted, in no instance is the uric acid the "disease," but merely one phase of a chain of conditions, a symptom or a result of those conditions, which together comprise the disease.

If therefore, attention be given only to getting the excessive uric acid out of the system, without any attempt being made to stop its excess manufacture, you are dealing only with results and have an endless job on your hands.

It may be stated as a general fact that the most frequent primary cause of excess uric acid formation is poison absorbed from the intestines, or from the mouth and throat.

It is therefore of the highest importance, as the beginning of rational treatment, that these conditions be investigated and brought under control by competent medical advice.

If this is done promptly, the "uric acid" will generally take care of itself.

Six Girls in Burial Gowns Fail to Attract Notice

Several pretty young girls walked along Huntington avenue, dined at a Copley square hotel and then retraced their steps, all the time dressed in the burial gowns which are a feature of the exhibition at the convention of the Massachusetts Undertakers' Association in Horticultural Hall.

All this, yet no one noticed anything unusual in their dress. That is the point that exhibitors at the convention sought to emphasize, namely, that present day burial costumes are of the same material and quality as any person would wear on the street or in the home.

PARADE WILL END DOVER CELEBRATION

Dover, N. H., Aug. 23—The final event of the five-day celebration held here this week in conjunction with the commemoration of the first permanent settlement of New Hampshire three centuries ago will be held today in the form of a monster street parade and mardi-gras carnival.

Those in charge of the parade say it is to be the greatest street demonstration that Dover has ever witnessed. More than 9,000 persons will participate.

TELL THESE AT DINNER

Two dwellers in the suburbs, coming along the road one evening, stopped aghast. "What's the matter at Hobbs' house?" gasped one. "He's got every gas-jet in the place going!" "I know," replied the other suddenly. "His wife is coming home tomorrow." "I don't see what that has got to do with this sudden illumination." "Oh, he wrote to her, saying he'd been spending his evening quietly at home reading, and if she comes back and found the gas bill about a quarter of what it should be in the circumstances, she will be very suspicious."

GIRL SWIMS MILE IN SOUND TO HELP SAVE PARTY ADRIFT

SENDS AID AT NIGHT TO 4 IN BOAT

Brooklyn Heroine's Friends Blown Off Shore After Losing Oar

Northport, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Margaret Candela, 14 years old, of Brooklyn, swam a mile through the warm waters of Long Island Sound to obtain aid for her brother and three others, adrift in a rowboat with only one oar.

The party was picked up off Fort Jefferson after spending the night in the open boat, clad only in bathing suits.

The boating party lost an oar when a mile from shore. Miss Candela dived overboard for the oar, but when she had recovered it and was ready to return, the wind was blowing it so far away that she realized she could not overtake it. She calmly set out for shore, guided by the lights of Northport.

Exhausted when she reached shore, she told her story, and was taken in charge by villagers. Scores of boats put out in search of the drifting rowboat. It was found by a fisherman who joined in the search.

Those in the drifting boat were Jerome Candela, twelve years old, brother of the girl swimmer; Caroline Sparno, teacher in a parochial school; Mary Rich, teacher in a public school; Philomena Castle, twelve years old, a school chum of the Candelas. All live in Brooklyn.

STRIKERS RULE IN VERA CRUZ

Vera Cruz, Aug. 23.—Vera Cruz is virtually under the control of a committee of strikers which has taken over direction of the police. Order is being maintained.

The envoy sent by President Obregon has returned to Mexico City with the news of the strikers who have been empowered to negotiate a settlement.

The wives of the members of the syndicate of "tenants who pay no rent" marched to the city markets and compelled domestic servants who came to buy their daily food supply to go to the headquarters of the strikers, sign the syndicalist membership list and immediately declare a ten-day strike.

LARGEST WARPLANE EXCEEDS ALL HOPES

Boston, O., Aug. 23.—The Barling bomber, largest airplane in the world, today was ready to be placed among the fighting machines of the United States Army Air Service, following her premier flight at Wilbur Wright Field, near here. Her performance was beyond the expectations of Walter H. Barling, the designer, an Englishman, who hopes soon to become an American citizen.

With all six Liberty motors thundering, the plane went up 2,500 feet and on straight away flying, attained a speed of 85 miles an hour.

EDISON HURT HIS FINGER; THAT'S ALL

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 23.—Thomas A. Edison, who was on a camping trip with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, declared that he is "all right and sorry the rumor got out that he is sick." One finger on his right hand was slightly injured Monday when the windshield of his car closed suddenly, catching his hand. Mr. Edison also said a slight cold, contracted on the journey across the lake, had practically disappeared.

AUTO UPSET IN CRASH, DRIVER IS ARRESTED

BOSTON MAN HELD ON WOMAN'S CHARGE

Portland, Me., Aug. 23.—After a search of ten months, William H. McGrath, thirty-five years old, a woodsman, of South Boston, has been arrested here on a charge of assault with intent to kill Mrs. Samuel Shorr on Oct. 2, 1922.

Mrs. Shorr identified McGrath as the man who assaulted her. He asserted his innocence.

25,000 SIGN PETITION AGAINST GAS TAX

DEPOSITING PETITIONS IN STATE HOUSE

J. W. Bowman (at left) representing Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, and R. S. Von Lossberg, representing A. L. A., carrying petitions which gave right to submit question of two-cent tax on gasoline to State referendum at 1924 election.

VOTERS TO PASS ON 2-CENT TAX ON GASOLINE

Nineteen thousand voters signed a petition for a referendum on the two-cent gasoline tax, which was to have become effective today, filed the petition with the Secretary of State, and won their point.

The proposed tax will be submitted to the voters in November, 1924, i. e., at the next State election. In the event of acceptance the tax cannot become effective until January 1, 1926.

If the tax is rejected it will become a dead issue, immediately.

A committee of four representative automobile men, headed by Day Baker, representing the Massachusetts Automobile Dealers and Garage Association, presented the petition to the Secretary of State.

More than 12,000 signatures had been obtained on the petition for a referendum, although the law requires 10,000 signatures. The committee making the fight lopped off 2,000 signatures when they handed in the petition.

The automobile people, it is understood, will readily submit to a two-cent tax. They object to the higher tax approved by Governor Cox and the Legislature.

On the committee with Baker were: Chester I. Campbell, Commercial Motor Vehicles Association; J. W. Bowman, Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, and S. S. von Lossberg, representing W. A. Tinkoff, general counsel for the A. L. A.

DORCHESTER GIRLS HURT AS AUTO HITS MOTOR BUS

Old Home Day

Surry, N. H., Aug. 23.—Atty. John J. Landers of Keene and Frank Kingsbury of Surry were the speakers at the Old Home Day exercises at Wright Grove, Surry. Both referred to the 200th anniversary of the first settlements of New Hampshire.

FRAUD CHARGED TO DISTILLERY OWNER

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of Michael J. Minnick, distillery owner, of Merion, Penn., charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, bribery, and failing to return his income tax for the last two years. Bail was fixed at $20,000 by the District Attorney's office.

According to Assistant United States District Attorney Friedman, Minnick withdrew 4,200 barrels of whiskey from two distilleries on permits alleged to have been forged. The value of the whiskey was placed at about $4,000,000.

BERLIN TO SEIZE FORTUNES OF HOARDERS

Berlin, Aug. 23 (AP).—Political opinion, as reflected in the Reichstag, is behind Chancellor Stresemann in his decision to requisition foreign currencies in Germany. The government hopes to obtain between two hundred and three hundred million gold marks by this drastic procedure.

Persons caught willfully concealing their hoardings of foreign moneys will be dealt with severely, their fortunes will be confiscated and they themselves will be fined.

Advices received in London from Berlin said the German government had decided to inflict the death penalty on the more flagrant violators of the new measures to restore the currency. Direct and later dispatches from the German capital, however, contain no reference to such a decision on the part of the government.

French Seize Two More Essen Mines

Essen, Aug. 23 (AP).—The French have occupied two additional mines in the Essen district. They are the Langenbrahm Gottfried - Wilhelm Ludwig and Neue Essen mines.

TURKS TALK OF ANNULING DEAL WITH CHESTER

Angora, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Minister of National Economy has favorably received an offer from a Turkish limited company submitting a plan for development of the national resources which would be substituted for the so-called Kennedy-Chester agreement. The project will be studied by the council of ministers.

The Turkish company, it is understood, is working with French development interests. The Turkish official press bureau says the new plan is much more favorable to Turkey than is the Chester convention.

Ownership of the concessions in Asiatic Turkey obtained by Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, retired, passed last June to the Ottoman-American Development Company, of whichwhich Colonel K. E. Clayton-Kennedy, a Canadian, is a director.

The convention putting into effect the Chester concessions was signed at Angora on April 30. The convention was ratified by the Turkish Nationalist Assembly on April 10.

WOMAN BEGGAR HUNTED AS KIDNAPER OF M'KENZIE BABY

USES CHILD IN SEEKING CHARITY

New Clews Aid 1,000 Police in Quest for Girl Stolen From Baby Carriage

New York, Aug. 23.—The mysterious kidnaping of little Lillian McKenzie was laid by police at the door of a professional woman beggar who hoped to use the child, which was sickly and thin, to help her door-to-door appeal for alms.

While more than 1,000 policemen and detectives were still hunting from house to house throughout New York, Captain John H. Ayre, head of the Missing Persons Bureau, said he was convinced from reports on the case that the baby was stolen by a professional "panhandler."

Captain Ayres sent an appeal calling on all persons to take an immediate contact to the police if a beggar with an infant is located.

WOMAN A FOREIGNER.

Information about the woman and the child was revealed to Captain Ayres by a woman who lives in a tenement on Asbury and Cleveland street, in that factory section of the city, and who said that she was convinced that the woman was carrying the missing baby when she came begging for money in her apartment Saturday afternoon.

The informant noticed that in her fant in the woman's arms was smothered and was wrapped in a rug and white flannel cloth, and was wrapped around the kidnaped child when the mother left her in the perambulator to make purchases in the store.

"I cannot reveal the name of our informant," Captain Ayres said "because to do so at this time might interfere with our plans to apprehend the suspected woman."

She told us that the child carried by the woman when she called on her in spite of skin appeared to be about seven months old. She says an unusually nervous child for this woman and we feel that with the cooperation of the public we will be able to find and rescue the child.

TOLD PATHETIC STORY.

She said that the woman was about 5 feet 4 inches tall, had a swarthy complexion and was a foreigner, weighed about 130 pounds and wore a mixed blue and white dress and a white shawl. Our informant also told us that the shawl was particularly noticeable because of the white about the other being dark or faded in coloring.

Captain Ayres stated that his information received that when the woman called on her with the child Saturday afternoon she appeared to be extremely nervous. The child appeared to be in a comatose state, the woman told him.

The caller said that she was the mother of seven children and was in needy circumstances.

She said that she and the child were on the streets all day. Captain Ayres continued. She pleaded for something to eat in formula and that she was sorry for the woman that she had to another woman in an apartment house who was in bed. She asked for some stairs to help her, but the woman was unable to help her and informed another tenant with the child and disappeared.

SOME OF THE MANY WHO APPEARED IN PROTEST

RIPPED DOWN BILLBOARDS AS PROTEST

"The Summer visitors to this State do not spend $50,000,000 here a year to look at billboards," President Ralph S. Bauer of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce declared at the antibillboard hearing before the State Department of Public Works.

Bauer said the people along the twenty-seven miles of the new Newburyport turnpike petitioned to have it declared a scenic highway to keep the boards off and while the State was delaying its decision "four new and monstrous boards" were erected here.

He said he tore two of them down with his own hands and he challenged their owners to take him into court to make him pay any damages.

CAN'T RENT HOUSE

Mrs. T. A. Clark said she has been unable to rent her apartment property on Columbia Road, Dorchester, because a big advertising sign was erected on the next building beside her and the State has refused any relief.

Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, retired, said the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce wants the boards removed from the Cape because they may use some locally.

The little town of Brewster sent word that it was to depend entirely now on Summer boarders who dislike to go to bed at night with a last glimpse at a giant billboard and to open their eyes in the morning to look at the same old boards again.

SULLIVAN ALONE.

Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester was alone in his declaration that "beautifully-painted" boards add to the attractions of natural beauty. All the others at the yesterday's hearing agreed the boards are "nothing more or less than monuments of ungainly ugliness."

The department proposed rules which would limit the size of boards to twelve feet in height and twenty-five feet in width, would permit them not within 100 feet of a public recreation place and would require a private property owner to obtain the consent of a majority of his neighbors within 100 feet on all four sides.

President Horace B. Cale of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards said the size of the boards should be limited to four feet by eight feet.

The billboard interests will be heard on September 5.

STATE ORDERS $1 GAS IN ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The Public Service Commission today fixed $1 per thousand cubic feet as the maximum rate to be charged by the Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation for gas in Rochester after Sept. 1.

The company is authorized to make a minimum monthly charge not exceeding 50 cents for each consumer. The commission directed this rate be continued until Oct. 1, 1924, and thereafter until otherwise changed by the commission.

MANY DISABLED CIVILIANS GO BACK TO WORK

Washington, Aug. 23.—Disabled civilians are being rehabilitated and returned to gainful pursuits under the provisions of the federal rehabilitation act at an average public cost of $200 per case, it was announced today by the federal board for vocational education. This figure is based on cost estimate submitted to the board by the several States.

Approximately 18,000 disabled persons, it was reported, have been rehabilitated since the passage of the act in 1920, providing that the expense of the civilian service be borne equally by the federal government and the States.

OREGON SCHOOL LAW ATTACKED IN SUIT

Portland, Ore., Aug. 23.—Suit attacking the constitutionality of the Oregon compulsory public school law enacted at the general election last November, was filed in the United States district court here today by the sisters of the Society of the Holy Name of Jesus and Mary.

DE VALERA TO IGNORE BRITISH IF HE WINS

London, Aug. 23.—An insight into the program of the Irish Republicans, in the event the De Valera faction wins in the elections next week, is given in a manifesto published by Peter McGinley, Republican agent in Donegal, according to the Belfast correspondent of the Morning Post.

Assuming that the Republicans win a majority in the Dail, the manifesto says that among other things they will take possession of the Legislature and will form a ministry, probably with the support of the Laborites. They will ignore the treaty and everything that implies British supremacy, including the Governor-General, whose salary will immediately cease.

The Republicans, continues the manifesto, will reduce the army to 5,000 or even to 1,000 men, substituting a volunteer force. They will introduce a comprehensive scheme of national development and economy and will cut the salaries of judges and other officials. They plan, further to acknowledge nor respect, the dispatch adds, any internal boundary in Ireland and will call upon England to evacuate the harbors and observe the three-mile limit.

SEES PERIL IN RACE TO BUILD AIRCRAFT

Williamstown, Aug. 23 (C.N.S.)—The nations of the world are engaged today in a race to develop aircraft as an offense wepon of war which is swiftly assuming the place of the race in armaments before the Great War, Professor Jesse S. Reeves of the University of Michigan, declared today at the Institute of Politics.

He warned that only by making preparations for defense against aircraft attack can ey nation achieve security.

"The only counter to aircraft is sufficient ethic craft," said Professor Reeves. "It takes no keen mind to know that one of the most potent causes of the great war was the competition in armaments that preceded it. We have stopped competition in the matter of navies, but it seems to be repeated by competition in air craft.

"We should have no illusions about that, for the rivalry that stopped in one direction has started in another."

The flight of the United States bombing squadron from Langley Field, Virginia, to Bangor, Me., the other day proves, according to Professor Reeves that the aeroplane is not a mere vehicle of communication, but is also a very powerful instrument of war.

"France bases its defense on aircraft and possesses the most powerful air fleet in the world," he said.

"The last war was entirely different from any previous war in many ways. The element of morale was all-important, and is bound to be more important in future wars. The bombing of London by Zeppelins and the firing on Paris by long range guns proved ineffective only because not sufficiently powerful.

"If the Germans had more poison gas and more Zeppelins and more long range guns, it is very likely that the morale of the Allies would have been broken down and the war won for Germany."

Magnus Johnson to Roar in Noiseproof Senate Office

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—Senator-elect Magnus Johnson (Minn.) has been assigned Suite 125 in the Senate office building, and thereby hangs a story.

Rooms in the office building are assigned by the Committee on Rules, and when it came to finding suitable quarters for Senator Johnson due consideration was given to the fact that he has a voice which makes rumbling freight trains sound like a murmur.

The partitions between the rooms are very thin, and any loud expressions can be heard far away.

The problem of finding suitable quarters for Senator Johnson was solved by arranging for a "buffer room" between his suite and those adjoining—that is to say, extra rooms were added to the adjoining suites which may or may not be used.

ARREST K. K. K. FOR CARRYING ARMS IN N. J.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 23.—A Ku Klux Klan initiation meeting here ended with the arrest of seven men, one of whom said he was a minister, on a charge of carrying fire arms in an automobile. The men were held in $500 bail each and failing to post bond, were locked up for a hearing today.

The entire police force of the city was called out to guard Junior Hall, the headquarters for the initiation meeting.

The actual initiation was held on top of Watchung Mountain back of the city. During the night klansmen drove back and forth from the mountain to Junior Hall in small groups and it was in one of these groups that the police discovered an automobile containing seven men, in which were a shot gun and two revolvers.

"There's a whole lot more to driving besides simply shifting gears and steering. The biggest part of the job is to keep your head no matter what looms up in front of you. Poor brakes cause a good many accidents—and so do poor nerves."
(The Veteran Motorist.)
Says the Veteran Motorist:
I WISH I could paint some big signs along every motor highway and byway. They would all be alike—just five words. But I'm convinced that those five words would save many a mishap and many a doctor's bill. Here they are: LOOK WELL TO YOUR BRAKES.
"The least every motorist can do, for his own protection and the safety of others, is to be absolutely sure that the brakes are 100% O. K. Many a chap has started out for a spin and come back via the tow-line, sadder and wiser, because his brakes 'didn't work.'
"He thought they were good enough. But when a real test came on a steep hill, with a blind cross-road at the bottom, they didn't measure up. And it happens every day—to somebody. Look well to your brakes!"

DYING RUM RUNNER WANTED TO SEND CHILDREN TO COLLEGE

HIS STORY REVEALED BY WIFE

old. I brought Parker with me—he's too young to be left at home with the other children. It will take a lot of money to send all six children to college, but Arthur promised they should go to college, and he is a man of his word."

Mrs. Moore is staying at the home of a cousin, Mrs. Ina Conti, No. 46 Wheatland street, Somerville, where she is under the care of a physician since her first brief visit with her husband.

Through Mrs. Conti, Mrs. Moore told the Boston American she is confident that Gloucester men made the raid on her husband's ship. She has retained counsel to help track down the pirates, and to conduct the prosecution.

"Arthur had $15,000 Monday morning and the pirates thought they would get it, but Arthur doesn't take many chances. He wanted that money to send the children to college.

"He sent the money to a Boston bank by messenger Monday morning. And it's safe in the bank now. This was Arthur's second trip with a liquor cargo, he told me. I am sure that that is true.

DENIES HE IS OUTLAW

"He's not an outlaw. No man who cares as much for his wife and children as Arthur does could possibly engage in the rum traffic without a high motive—a motive so high that it would justify any risk. College for the children was Arthur's motive."

When Mrs. Moore learned that her husband had been shot by rum pirates, she hurried from Weymouth, N. S., to Yarmouth, N. S., and boarded the boat for Boston. When she arrived in Boston she was met at the pier by I. G. Hall, Jr., of Watertown, a Boston shipping broker, who ordered his chauffeur to take Mrs. Moore to the Addison Gilbert Hospital in Gloucester in his automobile.

FAINTS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Moore was trembling when led into the quiet room of the hospital where her husband is dying. A step or two. She stopped, fell to her knees, and fainted. Nurses brought her to consciousness, and took her to the bedside.

Except what Mrs. Moore has made known, it is not known what words passed between husband and wife.

"Tell me how the children are, Ethel," one of the nurses overheard the Captain ask.

WOUNDED PIRATE TREATED.

Two startling developments in the battle of Captain Moore and Cook Harry Harma of the three masted schooner J. Scott Hankinson with rum pirates were unearthed by the American reporter. One of them was that the wounded pirate, laid low by two bullets from the revolver of the captain, had been landed in Gloucester and his wound carefully treated and then spirited away.

The injured man was carried ashore with a bullet in his leg, and another though not serious wound in the body. His wounds were dressed by a surgeon and no time was then lost in getting him out of town to a safe place of hiding.

Boston Men and Money Back Rum-Running Fleet

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 23.—Boston men and money back the rum-running schooner J. Scott Hankinson and other ships of a great rum-running fleet operating off New England shores, according to the four sailors who brought the J. Scott Hankinson into port here.

Thousands of cases of whiskey, mostly Scotch, together with quantities of beer, wines, and other alcoholic beverages are landed on the New England shores, according to an elaborate and well-maintained schedule, the Hankinson's men said.

FINANCES UNLIMITED.

Nightly, numberless fleets of small vessels swarm around the rum-runners, and each craft buys its liquor over the rail and takes it ashore. Back of all these elaborate smuggling operations is a group of Boston men with unlimited financial Blood covered the Hankinson's decks when she came into port. Splintered wood in the captain's cabin and empty shells strewn from the deck house to the forecastle, gave evidence of the conflict that had taken place.

FIRST LADY OF LAND KNITS PRIZE ROBE

MRS. COOLIDGE'S HANDIWORK

International Newsreel Photo.

Here is the hand knitted baby carriage robe which Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the President, entered in the national knitting contest, for which prizes totaling $11,000 were offered. It is being held in view by Miss Lena Loria, of Washington. The robe is made of four-ply Germantown yarn, one yard square, plain net with three shells of knitted lace, lined with pink crepe de chine. Mrs. Coolidge said it would go to the first grandchild in the Coolidge family.

cew gladly surrendered themselves and their cargo to customs men [illegible] was [illegible] but fighting pirates.

Frank Moores, the mate, a relative of Captain Arthur Moore, commanded the vessel home.

"I thought pirates lived only in books," he told the people who boarded the boat here. He received his visitors in the bloody captain's cabin.

"Business had been all right for a couple of weeks. Monday night a big motor boat pulled alongside. We saw three men aboard her. All hands turned to and made her fast.

"Two men came aboard. They had been almost daily visitors, and we greeted them cheerfully. They asked about booze, and according to the custom, the captain beckoned them into the cabin to sample a case.

"Captain Moore had only turned his head to lead the way when one of them fired. With that shot, the leader of the pirates, who seemed a right gentlemanly sort of chap, began shouting orders. Six more men appeared over the side of the ship. Bullets sang from every gun.

RETURN PIRATE'S FIRE.

"The chief pirate, with his gun pulled down over his eyes, accompanied by another man, entered the cabin where the wounded captain was. Sounds of further battle came from the cabin. Captain Moore found his gun, and returned the pirate's fire. The pirate chief fired six more bullets into Captain Moore.

"None of the rest of us had guns. We stood frozen up forward. Every man against us was armed. They seemed to have hundreds of bullets, and I'll bet they used every one of them.

"Then the chief came forward and frisked us for guns and money. His men were ransacking the ship, grabbing bills and bottles wherever they found them."

BLOOD RAN COLD.

Connie Bonnantini, a square-jawed, heavy-set seaman, took up the story. "I've been running rum for seven months," he said, "but my blood ran cold when we were standing up before those pirates. All at once, we all turned at the sound of the Captain's voice. He had crawled upon the deck.

"The pirate chief just laughed when the Captain said he guessed he was dead, and that he gave up. The pirate just asked how the cook was. 'I guess he's dead,' Captain Moore told him.

"'Dead,' he said, and laughed again. 'To H——with him.' Then he laughed again."

Harry Miller, eighteen years old, told of being grazed on the head by a pirate's bullet and showed his wound. Herbert Williams, still under twenty years old, the remaining member of the crew, was taken aboard the pirate ship, and then returned to his own ship when he kicked and screamed more than suited the pirates.

Strike or Arbitration? Force or Reason?

On July 26th the mine workers presented their first ultimatum—closed shop and check-off. The operators offered a basis of settlement or arbitration. The mine workers refused both, and broke off negotiations.

On August 15th the United States Coal Commission intervened and the parties agreed to resume negotiations.

On August 21st the mine workers presented their second ultimatum—a 20 per cent increase for the contract men and a 40 per cent increase to day men, adding $90,000,000 annually to wages. This ultimatum for increases on top of war-peak wages is not justified by the coal commission's report, and would add two dollars per ton to the price of domestic coal. The operators again offered arbitration.

The mine workers not only refused arbitration but refused to hold the conference in session pending further advice from the coal commission.

The miners' union declares:—

"We refused to await word from the coal commission because we are not making any requests to the commission and are not pleading with the coal commission or any other governmental agency to assist us in defeating the operators in this contest."

In 1922 the miners' union declared:—

"We refused arbitration from the President of the United States, notwithstanding that all the pressure of the government was back of the proposal."

The official record from Atlantic City is as follows:—Atlantic City, New Jersey, August 21, 1923—Mr. John Hays Hammond, chairman United States Coal Commission, Washington, D. C. My Dear Sir: At the session of the joint conference held today the following resolution was offered by the mine workers' representative, to wit: "Resolved, that the contract wage scales be increased twenty per cent (20%), and that all day men be granted an increase in wages of $2 per day."

On this resolution the miners voted "Aye," the operators voted "No."

The following resolution was offered by the operators' representative: "That the contract and day wage scales of the agreement now in force shall be renewed for a period ending March 31, 1925."

On this resolution the operators voted "Aye," the miners voted "No."

The following resolution was offered by the operators' representatives to wit:

"Whereas, the mine workers have declared that further negotiations are futile, be it resolved:

"1. That all of the eleven demands shall be submitted to arbitration. If arbitrators cannot be mutually agreed upon, then the President of the United States shall be requested to appoint arbitrators. It is understood that no downward revision of the wage scales shall be made.

"2. That there shall be no cessation of production pending the consideration of the demands by the arbitrators, and that the findings shall be retroactive to September 1st."

On this resolution the operators voted "Aye," and the miners voted "No."

A motion was made by the miners that the committee adjourn. On this motion the miners voted "Aye," the operators voted "No."

Following the resolution was offered by the operators' representatives:

"Resolved, that the secretary be instructed to advise the United States Coal Commission of the present status of the negotiations, and that the joint sub-committee hold itself in readiness for consideration of such suggestions as they may make."

On this resolution the operators voted "Aye," the miners voted "No."

Representatives of the operators offered the following resolutions:

"Resolved, that the secretary be directed to notify the United States Coal Commission of the present status as to the negotiations; that the committee adjourn to meet at the call of the secretary."

The foregoing resolution was unanimously adopted.

Very truly yours,

JAMES A. GORMAN, Secretary,

The Greedy Wolverine Wise Mrs. Ford On Which Side? Miss Wills of California

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company.

DO YOU KNOW about the Wolverine, not the Detroit express train, but the animal, largest of the weasel tribe, weighing as much as 120 pounds.

The wolverine, most savage of all animals, is dying off rapidly. It is so greedy that it will not leave porcupines alone. Porcupines are so foolish they think nothing will swallow their prickly bodies, and don't even get out of the way.

The wolverine eats the porcupine, chewing up the stickers. Those penetrate the wolverine's intestines and he dies in agony after about ten days.

The wolverine ought to be a warning to over-greedy trusts. The porcupine is about as silly as some of the voters.

MRS. HENRY FORD readers public service in her frank talk to girl campers. They called asking for autographs with their overalls rolled up far above their knees and socks rolled down to their ankles. Mrs. Ford's advice, "Go home and dress properly," was precisely what those girls needed.

WILL THOSE that think the United States should mix in Europe's League of Nations or World Court answer a question? You know that relations between France and England are badly strained. But for the French flying machines the relations would not be strained, but broken.

Supposing France and England went to war and we were tied up in their League or Court, how long could we keep out; if we were forced in, which side would you have the United States take?

LAZY, WORTHLESS TRIBES of Indians used to live in California. Too lazy to hunt, too cowardly to fight, they drifted, living on nature's bounty.

Today's white inhabitants of California are the most high strung, energetic, hard-working people in the world.

Helen Wills, a seventeen-year-old California University student, represents the California breed of white people. Not full grown, she has conquered the whole world of tennis, excepting the French marvel, Suzanne Lenglen. Next year, when she reaches eighteen, she will go after the French wonder.

Ambition is the word that explains the difference between Indians that just lived on California and white people that have built California.

A DISTINGUISHED Chicago lawyer says: "Politicians are not qualified to select judges." He's right. He says, "Judges should be selected by the lawyers of the country." He is wrong.

Judges should be selected by the people and made subject to recall by the people. Their job should include defending the people against politicians, also against lawyers that protect trusts, bucket shops, and similar enterprises for a consideration, and have a great deal too much to do with government in proportion to their numbers.

THE RUSSIAN BOLSHEVIKI, strange creatures, believing that a universal revolution would help the world, are sending gold to revolutionists in Germany. That may help a little, but the Allies quarreling about the best way of choking Germany to death are giving the revolutionists the best help.

ONE MAN in California cuts the price of gasoline to six cents a gallon. That is war, of course. But there isn't much comfort for the consumer in a few days of war and low prices. When the big oil men kill off the little fellows, they will take out of the consumer's pocket all that the price war costs, and a little more.

THE HEAD of one bank in New York is nearly one hundred. Another, John A. Stewart, of the United States Trust Company, has celebrated his 101st birthday. Men are living longer than they did. Sensible eating more than makes up for the strain of business life. Those that think live longest. A man said a tree fits at the top. Fresh air, sunlight and fresh air and good temper.

NEAR DEATH AS BOATS CRASH IN SOUND

MISS CATHERINE SMITH

Cleveland girl, now in Hub, was asleep in berth when the steamship Plymouth was rammed by a freighter attempting to throw a tow line to the disabled Fall River liner in Long Island Sound. Her stateroom was nearly smashed by the collision.

TRAP SET FOR WORCESTER'S FIREBUG

Worcester, Aug. 23—Chief of Police George H. Hill has ordered a score of patrolmen into plainclothes for nightly duty in the area through Salem, Chatham and High streets in an effort to arrest a firebug held responsible for a score of fires here within ten weeks and who works in the night.

According to State Detective Robert E. Molt, Chief of Police Hill, Captain of Detectives James J. Casey and Fire Chief Charles L. McCarthy four recent fires in the Chatham street section, which drove many into the street in their nightclothes in the early morning were of incendiary origin.

Damage of $8,000 was done to the house at No. 13 Chatham place when flames swept through the three enclosed piazzas in the rear of the house, and fourteen men, women and children hurriedly left their beds. The fire was set in rubbish placed under the bottom piazza.

Treffle Belmore was awakened to find a blaze gaining strength in piled up kindling on the piazza of his home at No. 65 High street. A strange man leaped from the piazza.

At No. 21 Salem street, a three tenement house, rubbish was piled against the front wall and as high as the ceiling and then set on fire.

TROLLEY CAR RAMS AUTO IN REAR; 3 HURT

Three women autoists were injured and passengers were panic stricken when a Somerville-bound one-man trolley collided with an automobile at Prospect and Hampshire streets, Cambridge, during the rush hour.

Mrs. Maude P. Boyd, of No. 50 Pleasant street, Revere, operator of the automobile; Mrs. L. R. Collins, of East Foxboro, and Mrs. Edward Burrell, of No. 54 Pleasant street, Revere, occupants of the machine were injured. The five and seven year old children of Mrs. Boyd were uninjured.

Warren Scott, of No. 34 Garrison street, Somerville, was operating the trolley car. The Boyd auto was in the car tracks traveling in the same direction, the police say, and when the auto was held up by traffic Motorman Scott got no response from the emergency brakes. Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Collins were thrown to the street.

The women were cut by flying glass and bruised and were taken to their homes for medical treatment.

PENALTY DOUBLED IN RUM CASE APPEALS

Fitchburg, Aug. 23.—Judge Webster Thayer, in Superior Court here, announced that persons who appealed lower court sentences in liquor cases would run against a snag" when the cases came up before him for disposition. Judge Thayer demonstrated that he was not making an idle threat when the case of Joseph Roffi of Sterling, who had appealed a $50 fine on a liquor charge came up. He imposed fines totaling $115 on Roffi after the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Many defendants withdrew their appeals.

SAY SHIP SHORT OF HAWSERS

Disabled Plymouth Abandoned in Gale by First Craft That Came to Aid

Two hundred passengers from the Fall River line steamship Plymouth which was tossed about with disabled machinery for hours in a gale, reached Boston deeply impressed by the necessity for improved towing facilities in such an emergency and by the remarkable calmness exhibited by the scores of women and children.

Breaking of the high pressure crank pin which left the Plymouth helpless six miles off Falkner Island in Long Island Sound was aggravated by a collision with the steamship Chester W. Chapin of the New York New Bedford Line, which came to the rescue, and the parting of three tow lines.

Three hundred weary passengers were landed at New London at 12 40 p. m. and left there at 1.20 p. m. on a special train for Boston. About 100 left the train at Providence.

Misses Doris Maxine Goodman

"The sea was running high and the wind was blowing a young hurricane," said E. J. Rogers, night force of the Boston American press room, who had gone to New York to attend his father's funeral.

"The Chapin carried away one of the Plymouth's bulkheads and did other damage. The skipper of the Plymouth had hard work keeping her nose against the wind.

"It took an hour and a half to make the first line fast between us and the Chapin and that soon parted. After that two other hawsers snapped and the Chapin left us. The Plymouth and Chapin had no more tow lines. A radio was sent to New London for a tug. Meanwhile we drifted around in the Sound.

Mrs. Goodman Julian Goodman

When Mr. and Mrs. Max P. Goodman and their children, Julian and Maxine, and niece, Catherine Smith, of Cleveland, O., boarded the Plymouth they had every intention of spending a vacation in New England. They have changed their plans. Their staterooms were near the point of collision.

"We are going right back home," said Mrs. Goodman. "This experience has ended our idea of a vacation for a time."

E. O. Norris of Everett, his wife and two children, Virginia and Catherine, were also among the passengers.

"Yes, there was plenty to eat on board the ship," said Mr. Norris, "that is, they kept the dining saloon open for those who wanted to pay for their food. But they didn't feed us as compensation for the delay."

KEEP CLOSE GUARD ON SLAYER

Fear Tsekos Plans to Commit Suicide in Cell in Concord, N. H., Jail

Concord, N. H., Aug. 23.—Authorities at the Merrimac County Jail fear Nunzio George Tsekos, accused of killing his wife and his mother-in-law at Franklin, may attempt suicide. Sheriff George A. Woster has instructed the personnel at the jail to watch Tsekos day and night.

While in jail in East Cambridge, prior to extradition, Tsekos had a spoon given him with his meals. The bowl part of the spoon was found but the handle was missing until Tsekos was stripped, when it was found inside his stocking.

It was the opinion of the Massachusetts officials that Tsekos had it in mind to do away with himself and that the local authorities held the same theory to some extent at least is shown by the fact that he is watched night and day. Since his incarceration here, however, he has been cool, self possessed and unconcerned, joking with his guards and carrying on animated conversations with the prisoners in cells near his.

Francis Henning of Boston, held in connection with the murder of Vernon F. Atkins, Concord business man, is in a cell on the other side of the tier from Tsekos.

MOTHER SEEKS NEWS OF MISSING SON

Two years ago, when the sheet-metal workers went on a strike, Vincent Macile, 28 years old, found himself out of work. He went to Providence to get a job—and he was never heard from again.

Mrs. Margaret Macile Vincent Macile

Mrs. Margaret Macile, the widowed mother of Macile, is now seeking the son who was her sole support and who, by his disappearance, has thrown her into the direst circumstances. She is living with friends at 32 Teaman street, Revere.

Through two long years, she has waited hopefully and courageously for word from her boy. Illness prevents her from working; she has no means of support.

One letter, received a short time after Macile left for Providence, stated that he was about to leave for Chicago. Whether he did so or not, or whether he has since returned East, Mrs. Macile is anxious to ascertain, and above all, she longs to receive tidings of her only son, and sole living relative.

ALIENIST EXAMINES MURDER SUSPECT

Lawrence, Aug. 23.—Dr. Herbert M. Larrabee of Lowell, alienist associated with the Tewksbury Insane Hospital, began an examination of Barney Banks, who is detained at the Lawrence jail in connection with the murder of Police Officer Arthur J. Bower of Methuen.

Attorney Daniel Donahue of Lowell, counsel for Banks, accompanied the alienist. If Dr. Larrabee pronounces Banks insane the Commonwealth will be forced to engage authority on mental status to establish the State's assumption that the prisoner is sane.

In addition to competing in the beauty show she will take part in the spectacular bathers revue.

As a result, when the ship sails for England today, Vines will face the judge in Lynn Court.

Clavering and his friend, Dinwiddie, are immediately interested, and the latter receives a shock, declaring that she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He takes her to a gay studio party, after which she invites him home to hear her story of renewed youth.

"What about English men?" demanded Clavering [illegible]. "I thought [illegible] were bad [illegible] but real lovers."

"I know little of Englishmen. Zattiany was never appointed to St. James', and although, of course, I met many of them in the course of the [illegible] London several [illegible] have happened [illegible] ed in some one else or in a state of profound reaction from one at the time—at least so I [illegible] for a long while ago. "Those whom I tried to [illegible] would soon have tired of me had I not played the game as adroitly as themselves, and if I had permitted them to feel sure of me. The one thing any of them wanted was depth of feeling, tragic passion [illegible]. My most desperate affair was my last—after a long interval. I was in my early forties. I had thought myself too utterly disillusioned ever to imagine myself in love again.

"Men are gross and ridiculous creatures in the main, and aside from my personal disappointments, I thought it was time for that chapter of my life to finish. I was amusing myself with diplomatic intrigue. I was in the Balkans at the time, that breeding ground of war microbes and I was interested in a very delicate situation in which I played a certain part.

"The awakening was violent. He was an American with an important place in the government; he came to Belgrade on a private mission. He was a very great person in many ways and I think I really loved him for I seemed to me entirely worthy of it. He certainly was mad enough about me for a time—for a year, to be exact. When he returned to Vienna it was not difficult for me to find an excuse to go also. Although Zattiany was a Hungarian, he never visited his Hungarian estates except for the least humiliating, and spent his time when on leave or between appointments, in Vienna, where he had inherited a palace—I must tell you that the city residence of a nobleman in the Dual Empire was always called a palace, however much it might look like a house.

"I shall always remember this man with a certain pleasure and respect, for he is the only man who ever made me suffer. A woman forgets the lovers she has humiliated as quickly as possible. Their memory is hateful to her. Like the memory of all mistakes. But this man made me suffer. I was a proud girl. I was a child, out of duty to his house, and unexpectedly fell in love with her. Therefore, although I recovered, and completely, still do I sometimes dwell with a certain cynical pleasure on the memory of him.

"Have you ever seen him since?" asked Clavering sharply. He had returned to his chair. "How long ago was that?"

"Quite sixteen years ago. I did not visit Vienna again for several years; in fact, not until after my husband's death, when I returned there to live. But by that time I had lost both youth and beauty. His wife had died, but left him an heir, and he showed no disposition to marry again; certainly he was as indifferent to me as I to him. We often met, and as he respected my mind and my knowledge of European affairs, we talked politics together, and he sometimes asked my advice.

Love Out of Life

"But to go back. After that was over I determined to put love definitely out of my life. I believed then and finally that I had not the gift of inspiring love; nor would I ever risk humiliation and suffering again. I played the great game of life and politics. I was still beautiful—for a few years—I had an increasingly great position, all the advantages, obvious and subtle, that money could procure. My maid was very clever. My gowns, at that time went on, were of a magnificent simplicity; all frou-frous were renounced. I had no mind to invite the valuation I heard applied to certain American women in Paris: 'elderly and dress.'"

Clavering laughed for the first time. "I wonder you ever made a mistake of any sort. I also wonder if you are a type as well as an individual? I have, I think, followed intelligently your psychological investigations and convolutions so far. I am only hoping you will not get beyond my depth. What was your attitude toward your own mistake—beyond what you have told me? Did you suffer remorse, as I am told women do when they either voluntarily renounce or are permitted to sin no more?"

"I neither regarded them as mistakes nor did I suffer remorse. Every human being makes what are called mistakes and those happened to be mine. Therefore I dismissed them to the limbo of the inevitable. As your world, I am told, looks upon you as the normal creature, I appeal to your imagination to visualize that secret and vital and dramatic undercurrent of what was on the surface a proud girl's life. [illegible] Or, if there are regrets, it is for the weight of memories, the completeness of disillusion, the blighting of mental youth—which cannot survive brutal facts.

"I think that for women of my type—what may be called the intellectual siren—the lover phase is inevitable. We are goaded not only by the imperious demands of womanhood and the hope of the perfect companion, but by curiosity, love of adventure, ennui, possibly some more obscure complex—vengeance on the husband who has wrecked our first illusions—on Life itself. Bringing up, family and social traditions, have nothing to do with it. Only opportunity counts. Moreover, we are not the product of our immediate forebears, but of a thousand thousand unknown ancestors. . . ."

"God! True enough!"

"Unfortunately, those women who have wasted so much time on love never realize the tragic futility until Time himself disposes of temptation, and then it is too late for anything but regrets of another sort. The war may have solved the problem for many a desperate spirit.

"My own case has assumed an entirely different complexion. With my youth restored I have the world at my feet once more, but safe guarded by the wisdom of experience—in so far as a mortal ever may be. The bare idea of that old game of prowling sex fills me with ennui and disgust. The body may be young again, but my mind, reenergized though it is, is packed with memories, a very Book of Life.

Conquest of Men

"When I found that my beauty was restored I thought of nothing less than returning to the conquest of men in the old manner, although quite aware of its powerful aid in the work I have made up my mind to do in America first of all; but, of course, I have thought of little else but what this recrudescence of my youth means to you and to myself. Don't—please do not interrupt—this I shall not discuss with you again until Monday—if then.

"But once more I wish to impress you with the fact that I in dulge in nothing so futile as regrets for my 'past.' Sackcloth and ashes' provokes nothing but a smile from women of my type and class.

"Moreover, I believe that my education would not be complete without that experience—mine, understand. I am not speaking for women of other temperaments, opportunities, of less intellect or humbler character, weaker will . . . And if I had persisted in virtue at that time I should probably make a fool of myself today, an even more complete fool than women do when they feel youth slipping but still are able with the aid of arts to fascinate younger men.

"That most standardized chapter I renounced peremptorily. My pride was too great to permit me to be foolish even in the privacy of my mind over men half my age. Nor did I make any of the usual frantic attempts to keep looking young. I had seen too much of that, laughed at it too often. Nevertheless, I hated the approach of age, the decay of beauty, the death of magnetism, as bitterly as the silliest woman I had ever met.

"Some women merely date: lose their complexions, the brightness of their eyes and hair. Others grow heavy, solid, stout and flabby: the muscles of the face and neck loosen and sag, the features alter. I seemed slowly to dry up—whither there was no fresh to hang loose or wrinkle, but it seemed to me that I had ten thousand lines. I thought it a horrid fate. I could not know that Nature, meaning to be cruel, had given me the best chance for the renewal of the appearance as well as the fact of youth.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

[illegible] should a girl introduce [illegible] to her parents?

When should say at the party [illegible] very glad to have met [illegible] girl or the man?

PUZZLED

FIRST present the young man to your mother, saying "Mother, I'd like to present Mr. Livingston." Then to your father, "Mr. Livingston."

The thing to remember is that you present the young man to your mother, not your mother to the young man. When presenting a gentleman to a lady, mention the lady's name first.

Also in the second introduction, remember that a young man is presented to an older man, in deference to his age.

The one who is leaving first.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"MAX is over as the landscape-gardener a studying plans for making a park out of the front lawn," she laughed at last. Suppose you children entertain each other while I dress and when Max comes we can all drive over to Drumwold to see the baby. Ita-ph, my dear, I'll let you have the privilege of mowing Anne my garden.

Her tone seemed fraught with purpose. And suddenly I was glad at the thought of being alone with Ralph in Aunt May's garden.

There was something I must say to Ralph Lacy. And in the peace of this old-fashioned garden I thought I could find the courage.

In a hush of expectancy I [illegible] with Ralph Lacy down the [illegible] to the old-fashioned [illegible] Aunt May had asked him [illegible] show me. He was silent [illegible] walked the whitened little [illegible] gether. I didn't know what [illegible] wordliness meant that he [illegible] ed my mood—or shared it.

Sunday morning calm lay about us. A high box hedge separated the garden from the rest of the estate. We passed through it and went through a tiny pass between giant boulders. On [illegible] mossgrown and [illegible] other slanted back to a height covered with tiny [illegible] and trees. At its base was a pool in the rock face.

Beyond was a gentle valley where larkspur and sweet Williams, marigolds and cool white and green syringa bushes rioted down the slope. Against the back ground of box were holly hocks and sunflowers.

A rocky path cut through the garden. On either side were the beds of old-fashioned blooms. Beyond lay a tiny lake.

Ralph gave me a long moment to drink in the sweetness of Aunt Mary's garden. Then he led me straight into the heart of the flower-bordered paths. In the centre of the garden there was a stone seat.

"Sit here while I pick you a nosegay," said Ralph gently and with the delicacy that forbade me intruding on my mood.

"Won't you sit here, too?" I asked. "There's something I want to say."

"Of course," replied Ralph simply, as he took his place beside me on the old stone seat. "There's nothing you couldn't say to me, Anne. You know that. And there's nothing you could say to anyone here in this lovely corner of the world."

Greb Will Fight Johnny Wilson on His Merits

CHARGES OF FAKE ABSURD

By JACK CONWAY

Harry Greb will not deliberately lose to Johnny Wilson in their bout for the world's middleweight championship at the Polo Grounds, New York, a week from tomorrow night.

The [illegible] from Big Broadway to [illegible] who take a Pittsburgh boy's poor showing of the other night are without foundation. They are an injustice to both Greb and Wilson.

Greb has built up his own ring record by virtue of the fact that he has always tried to win. He is [illegible] who [illegible] against Wilson.

"If Greb loses it will be on account of the low weight rather than because he desired to meet defeat," Harry says, "for he can make 160 pounds without effort. If it is possible, though, that this big poundage may weaken him to the extent it will be impossible for him to win. The taking off of the last half pound may be what will cause his downfall."

Greb is supremely confident of winning. He will take everything he has in this match and feels he will win decisively. But if he does lose, it will be on his merits.

GENARO AND WOLGAST ONLY REAL RIVALS FOR VILLA

Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, and Bobby Wolgast of Philadelphia, who quarrelled the featherweight championship at the Commercial A. C. show at the Boston Arena on next Tuesday night, are the only real rivals for Pancho Villa. Both of these men can make the flyweight limit with ease, leaving themselves and so would have a chance of winning Villa's title.

Villa has beaten most of his opponents by compelling them to make low weight. A boxer cannot hope to take off four or five extra pounds.

LEADING SWIMMERS TO COMPETE IN AMERICAN'S CONTEST

BRAFF, TWOHIG, WRENN, ARE SURE STARTERS

The Boston American long-distance swim from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light has started off with a bang. Several New England natatorial sharks have signified their intentions of showing off on Sunday, September 9, on this great swim.

Jacob Braff of East Boston, a runner-up in the last Boston Light swim, has jumped at this opportunity to [illegible] prowess in the harbor waters of Boston.

Michael Wrenn, the robust guardian of the law at the city of Lynn, declares, with the proper pugnacious [illegible] he might.

James J. Twohig of South Boston, who has neared the [illegible] on several occasions, will have the opportunity of his life in this [illegible] to put a name on the honor role. Several other swimmers have called their entry blanks to this office.

Walter Paterson of [illegible], who attempted the [illegible] last Summer, and who [illegible] was the unofficial winner, in the light swim of a year ago, by writing to this paper declaring his intentions of making another attempt.

The Boston Light swim has been the turning point in the swimming careers of many notable swimmers. The strong flowing tides and eddies have proven too much for the swimmers from smooth waters.

It is well called the young English Channel swim. With all its difficulties, it has been found that the majority of the successful, and near successful, have been men of middle age, and in the case of John J. Bray, a grandfather of sixty.

It is expected that a contingent of swimmers from New York and Philadelphia district will journey to Boston to attempt the coveted goal.

All entries should fill out the entry blank and mail to John H. Collooly, Sporting Editor, 80 Summer street, Boston.

NO A. BATTERY NEEDED WITH THIS SET

If you are willing to build your own set, you can dispense with A batteries, either storage or dry cells, in the use of [illegible] house lighting current (110 volts, 60 cycles).

House current cannot be used to light detector tubes, as the alternating current hum would throw out [illegible] or speech. A crystal, however, makes an excellent detector, and after [illegible] one cuts out any A. C. hum from the amplifier tubes when these are lighted by alternating current.

An ordinary toy or bell-ringing transformer may be purchased at almost any electrical store.

Two potentiometers are connected across the six volt leads as shown in the diagram. These may be 200 ohms each. They are used in order to take off what is known as a center tap for the grid leads. A center tap cuts in between the alternating current waves so that theoretically it is of constant potential and does not fluctuate with the reversals of the current. Practically it is very [illegible] constant potential. P1 is for the grid of the R. F. tube.

The latter end P2 for the A. F. tube is connected to a grid biasing or C battery, which is necessary in order to have the correct negative [illegible] on the A. F. amplifier tube. [illegible] may be made up of [illegible] cells, and various voltages should be tried, as the correct potential depends on the type of tube and the voltage of the B battery.

A grid condenser and leak should be used on the radio-frequency tube. The condenser may be about .001 mfd., and the leak for best results should be variable up to seven or eight megohms, the amount varying with different tubes.

A bell-ringing transformer, purchasable at any electrical store, will light the filaments of amplifying tubes without any unpleasant hum if a crystal detector is used. A successful hook-up using 110 volts A. C. (the usual house current) is shown above. Two 200-ohm potentiometers (P1 and P2), the 110-volt transformer, and a biasing C battery on the audio-amplifier are the only unusual additions to the circuit. C1 is .001 mfd. and C2 is .00025 mfd.

PAPYRUS HAS THE CALL FOR TEST WITH ZEV

Steve Donoghue.

London, Aug. 23.—The owners of some of the largest racing stables in England do not share the view expressed in cables from New York that a race between Zev and Papyrus would be at all in the nature of a world's championship, or even a match between the best three-year-olds on either side of the Atlantic.

There is no popular feeling here that Papyrus is the best British three-year-old, in fact, there has been no outstanding horse in this class on the English tracks this year.

On paper, Papyrus seems to be just as good as any. He has not raced since he won the Derby by a slim margin from Pharos, but he will soon get a good test in the St. Leger Stakes. Entered in this race is Tarth, winner of third place at Epsom Downs.

Although the average British sportsman cannot see the justification for saying that the suggested race at Belmont Park would be for a "world championship," he is keenly interested, and the newspapers are featuring discussions of the proposed match.

English sportsmen, saturated as they are with love of horses, will put high hopes upon Papyrus, and without doubt would back him against Zev with many a pound and shilling.

Race-going folk are particularly hopeful that Ben Irish will be able to include Steve Donoghue to go to America to ride Papyrus.

This jockey, who has won five Derbys and a thousand other races, is regarded as without doubt the best man sitting in the saddle today.

Donoghue is said to be quite anxious to make the trip, and it only remains for Irish to come up a few high enough to warrant the jockey being absent several weeks from the home tracks.

SIMON PURES IN RING BATTLES

The amateur boxing show to be held at the Boston Arena on Friday evening under the auspices of the Hopkinton A. A., with five of the Boston members of the Olympic boxing team nominating committee, consisting of William C. Prout, president of the Amateur Athletic Union; William H. Cuddy, Chairman of the Boxing Nominating Committee; Albert Geigar, Jr., of the B. A. A. and Captain Joseph B. Maccabe, their first opportunity to watch the amateur boxers of New England who will be striving to make places on the Olympic Boxing Team that goes to Paris for the Olympic Games of 1924.

The Boxing team nominating committee is to make a study of the performances of likely candidates and report to the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee on their qualifications for the 1924 Olympic Team.

New England has been fortunate in the past, and especially Boston, in developing many amateur boxers who have brought National honors to the Hub, and this year is no exception. We have many exceptionally high-class performers right here in Boston that will be aboard the U. S. S. America when that boat leaves for Paris next June, and these boys will all be out ready to demonstrate to the Nominating Committee on the night of August 24th, that they should be given due consideration.

CHAPMAN GETS RECORD FOR 10 MILES

A new Revere Cycle Track record for 10 miles was made in the 10-mile heat race when George Chapman rode the distance in 17 minutes, 27 4-5 seconds.

Chapman also won the first and second heats and the race. He put away 10 points for two first places and then reeled in third heat which was won by Frank Corry.

The summary:

and still be able to give a good account of himself in the ring.

Genaro has two decisions to his credit over Villa, and would probably be an even money choice in the betting if he were to meet the Filipino again. As for Wolgast he is a comparative unknown in this section at Philadelphia and he doesn't he could conquer him in a decisive affair.

IT WILL TAKE A BOXER TO WIN OVER WALKER.

There is little hope of a free swinging puncher winning the world's welterweight title from Mickey Walker. This worthy socks too hard for even the tough boys.

A fast, classy boxer has a much better chance of winning over Walker. Jock Malone proved this when he defeated the Bulger entry at the Arena and Summer.

This is why either George Ward or Eddie Shevlin would make such a dangerous opponent for Walker. Ward has already outpointed Walker twice, proving that a dazzling left hand and sped can overcome heavy punching power.

Shevlin proved in his last bout with Kirby and in his tussles with Jack Perry and Nate Siegal that he does his best work when pitted against boys who rely upon the old wallop to win.

The winner of the Shevlin-Ward bout, which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at the Arena a week from tomorrow night, would be a logical opponent for Walker.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk Club seems to think there is a chance of such a contest coming to Boston. Since being suspended in New York, Walker has let it be known he would be willing to battle in Boston provided he is offered the proper financial inducements.

Golf at Lexington

Over the links of the Lexington Golf Club, in North Lexington, on Saturday afternoon, a handicap medal play and the fifth round of the season's trophy tournament will be played jointly.

TODAY'S TWILIGHT

GEORGE TWOMBLY, RIGHT FIELD, READING TOWN TEAM

He won for his team against Everett at the Everett High Grounds. In the fifth inning Twombly smashed a home run over the fence and scored Walker and Wright. That hit gave Reading the necessary pep to produce victory over Everett 7 to 4.

Twombly is a slashing fine ball player and at one time was with the Braves. After he left the major league circles the Medford lad quickly got into action with leading semi pro nines. Last season he played for Medford in the Boston Twilight League and this season transferred his affections to Reading. He has played brilliantly all season.

In a great game North Cambridge defeated Malden, 3 to 0. Edgar Clifford twirled for the Cambridge team, while Howard Queen tossed for Malden.

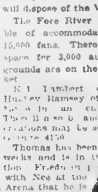
THOMAS HAS IT ON FRIEDMAN AT FIGHTING

Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, and Tony Thomas of New Bedford are expected to battle before a record crowd when they box a ten round bout at the big open air show of the Granite A. A. at the Fore River grounds, Quincy tomorrow night.

The fact that Thomas recently won a decision over Friedman at New Bedford has added interest to this match. South Shore and Boston fans are eager to see this sensational battler in action.



Tony Thomas

Thomas, a lad of nineteen, has not lost a bout since he turned pro. He reached the top of his form when he whanged out a victory over Friedman at New Bedford.

Since then Abe has given Pancho Villa a stirring battle and won over Tommy Nee and feels confident he will dispose of the Whaler.

The Fore River grounds is capable of accommodating more than 15,000 fans. There is also parking space for 3,000 automobiles. The grounds are on the road to Nantasket.

K. J. Lambert of Quincy and Hughey Ramsey of Weymouth will be the main event referees. There will be a semi and eight four rounders. Ring bouts will be decided by decision.

Thomas has been training for two weeks and is in the best of condition. Friedman has had a little less time with Nee at the Boston Arena that he is right. Abe has resumed training, as he knows he must be in razor edge condition if he is to score over Thomas.

There is also great interest in the ten-round semi final bout which will bring together Joe Pankrow of Quincy and [illegible] of Natick both boys have been training at the Abe Friedman.

WICKWIRE SPENCER

To R. S. B. Woodward avenue.—Early resumption of activities on issue about which you inquire seems likely.

Wickwire Spencer Steel, leading independent manufacturer of steel wire and wire products, is now functioning smoothly. The company as a result of a series of consolidations in 1919 and 1920 stepped off, or acquired, about one-fifth of the American Wire Fabric operation. A tin concern, Wire Wire Goods, was first organized in June, 1919, into the Cotton Wire Co. Wire Three months later he opened Wire Co. was closed in July, 1919, to which Spencer Steel was added to make the National Co. In connection with the latter purchase $5,500,000 preferred stock was retired at a 10 point premium.

As a result of these various consolidations Wickwire Spencer became a leading independent producer of wire rods in this country, having its own ores in Cuba, its own coke furnaces, converting the resulting pig iron into basic steel rods, and finally making and finished wire products.

DUQUESNE LIGHT.

To L. A. B., Glen road.—Duquesne Light Co. first preferred stock, 7 per cent cumulative series A is quoted around $103 a share.

Company does a large part of the commercial electric light and power business in Pittsburgh and a large part of Allegheny County and Counties Pa. Properties are said to be of the largest and most modern steam electric power plants in United States.

Net earnings for 1918 amount to $3½ per share on common for the year. For 12 months than 4 times dividend requirements on this issue and for the last five averaged about 3½ times.

WESTERN ELECTRIC

To L. K. H., Canton.—The [illegible] will be the company's biggest year, a prediction of Western Electric officials based on production figures for first six months from the Hawthorne Works, Chicago. In the cable department, for example, all past records are being broken. During this year 11,252,000 feet of copper wire, the communication conductor that is used in the main of future of telephone trunk. It is estimated that the output for the year will be at least 25% greater than that of 1918, or over 15,000,000 feet, enough to encircle the earth 3,000,000,000 feet or about 4,750,000 miles of copper wire conductor. This represents an increase of 15,000,000 feet over that used in the same plant ten years ago.

The years output of telephone receivers is at the rate of 12,750,000 or about 500,000 more than the plant turned out in 1918.

Another evidence of the Western Electric increased volume in the same just executed for the John B. Meyer Corporation a factory in New Ark, formerly used for manufacture of tire duck. This plant, made up of three buildings comprising about 120,000 square feet of floor space, will be converted to the manufacture of telephone apparatus, and when operated at capacity will employ 800 people. This project, of course, is aside from the building operations on the company's big factory planned for the Kearny shore on the Jersey meadows at Kearny, N. J.

PHILLIPS PETROLEUM.

To D. S. C., School street.—Phillips Petroleum Company owns about 400,000 acres of oil land in the Mid-Continent field. Of this amount 26,700 acres was under production on May 1, 1919. On that date the company's wells were yielding around 26,000 barrels a day. The company owns seven gasoline refineries in Oklahoma, with a total capacity of about 100,000 gallons a day.

The company was incorporated in Delaware in 1917, to take over the oil interests of Frank Phillips and L. E. Phillips, of Oklahoma. Capitalization consists of $3,450,000 of funded debt and 1,185,000 no par-value common stock. The book value of the common shares, according to the last published balance sheet, was $69.45 a share.

Earnings have shown a very rapid increase in the past few years. Net income in 1922 amounted to $9,200,032, or $13.20 a share before depreciation and depletion, and compared with $4,947,935 before depreciation, or a deficit of $982,262 after depreciation and depletion, in the preceding year. In the first six months of 1923 the company showed net profits of $8,000,000 after allowing for depletion and Federal taxes. This is equivalent to about $6.75 a share. Per share earnings since the formation of the company have averaged $5.80 a share.

The present dividend rate of $2 a share annually was established in April, 1923. In addition to the regular dividend, stockholders received on June 30 a special distribution of 50 per cent. in stock and $1 a share in cash.

Range of stock since listing on the New York Exchange: High, [illegible] in April, 1920; low, 15, in 1921; current price approximately 31½, unchanged about 1.10 per cent.

FINDS OIL FIELD IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, Aug. 23.—Four Nova Scotia oil drillers, who came here from Northumberland county, formerly conducted a total of three years' unsuccessful search for oil, are confident they have struck oil near the Bridgham and Lunt street end of Whittier, off the Amesbury Road in the Corliss hill section and his brother-in-law is expected to make it a wealthy man.

News of the find leaked when a permit was secured from the fire department to drive well. Dynamite, Neal and Frank F. Gove, a local oil expert, have prospected and drilled the land and oil is spouting from the well they dug.

Activities at the well have been suspended for the present, as Neal is working in Newburyport, [illegible] to obtain funds to continue [illegible] Gove says that if he [illegible] to wash the smell of oil off the hands after the earth has been handled.

U. S. Should Buy White Mountain Forest Lands

President Howard Coonley of the Chamber of Commerce urges an appropriation of two million dollars in the Federal budget for the purchase of forest lands in the White Mountains and other parts of the Appalachian range.

He says in his letter to the Director of the Budget at Washington:

All the large New England rivers but one rise in the White Mountains whose forests regulate the run-off of the flood waters. If these forests are cut the waterpower on which New England industry so largely depends will be seriously affected.

Mr. Coonley urges that the purchase be made at once, for the delay will not only cause greater damage, but the price of repairing it will multiply in almost geometrical proportion.

The Chamber cannot do better than to fight for this important project.

Life-Guards' Efficiency

Men Who Patrol Our Beaches Should Have Moral and Physical Capacity to Perform Their Duties

The sad drowning of Ambrose E. Crowley at Hampton Beach Sunday presents a lesson concerning the efficiency of alleged guards who are paid pretty good salaries for guarding the lives of bathers on our public beaches.

We quote a report from one of our daily newspapers:

While 500 bathers thronged the shore, wringing their hands in anxiety and shouting encouragement to the struggling pair, Crowley battled his rescuer. Three times he clapped a deathhold on Smith, who broke it each time and splashed his way back to the side of the drowning man

All the time they were being carried further from the shore. Miss Meagher, suffering from the shock of her own escape, shrieked and fainted. Coming to and seeing her sweetheart and his intended rescuer were still above water, she attempted to rush into the water and swim out to them. Bystanders prevented her with difficulty.

Are not our life-guards supposed to be able to swim? If Carl Smith, who is not a life-guard, could reach Crowley and help him as much as he succeeded in doing, what could three life-guards have done? Why was their boat leaking and why was it necessary for them to run up and down the beach looking for another boat that was not there while a private citizen was risking his life in the water to rescue Crowley?

If the newspaper report is correct the conduct of these life-guards is disgraceful and a thorough overhauling of our life-guards ought to be made to see both if they have the physical capacity and the moral capacity to perform their duties.

Hero, That Isn't Business

Ask Sergeant Donaldson, Who Got a Free Ride

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

When David Warfield acted with Weber and Fields the part of a millionaire "matzie" manufacturer he refused to let his daughter marry a soldier, saying to her, "Uneeda, a hero, that's not a business."

Warfield was right. To be a hero is a SATISFACTION, but it isn't a BUSINESS.

Take, for instance, the case of Sergeant Michael A. Donaldson, of Haverstraw, N. Y. He is one of the few men to whom Congress awarded a medal of honor after the big war. He deserved it. Fighting in the 165th Infantry, on October 14, 1918, he crept up from the sunken road in which his command was protected to the top of a hill in plain view of the enemy, while the enemy was firing. He brought down a wounded man to safety. Then made the trip five times more, bringing five more wounded. His comrades said he was perfectly cool about it, "Never a shiver." No wonder he got the medal.

At his own expense Sergeant Donaldson went to Washington to attend President Harding's funeral. He wanted to show his respect. He didn't have money to go as far as Marion. President Coolidge heard of it, sent for Donaldson and informed him that he would be sent to Marion to attend the President's burial without any charge whatever. Deeply grateful, Donaldson made the trip and then went back to earn his living at Haverstraw.

That free trip to a funeral and a medal is what Sergeant Donaldson got out of being a hero.

No wonder Warfield said, "A hero, that isn't a business."

Consider some others that never brought any wounded men down under fire, never got any nearer to the war than the restaurant of the New Willard in Washington or the Ritz-Carlton in New York, and that now travel about spending part of millions made while the war was on.

"A hero, that isn't a business," but a PROFITEER, that IS a business.

Police Must Keep the Peace

We have had rather enough of unseemly public exhibitions of fighting among our uniformed policemen. This method of destroying the morale of the police force and respect of the public for the force must be stopped by measures severe enough to be effective.

Those who undertake to make others keep the peace must know how to keep it themselves. These incidents of brutality by the Boston policemen have been quite too frequent lately. It shows that there is either a lack of discipline in the force or that the undesirable members of it have not all been weeded out.

RAPS THOSE WHO LAUD VILLA

MANILA, Aug. 23.—Dean Jorge Bocobo, of the law school of the University of the Philippines, has come out with a public statement strongly condemning the hero worship of Pancho Villa by his countrymen, who have fairly gone wild over his recent victory over Jimmy Wilde for the world's flyweight title.

Bocobo declares that he is a sport not recognized in decent society and that the Filipinos ought to try to distinguish themselves in more worthy lines of endeavor.

He Slaps Daughter

Editor Boston American:

While out walking the other night at 9 o'clock I saw a man rush up to two girls, grab one and then hold her with one hand while he slapped her with the other. I was shocked when I heard the pleading, "O, papa, please don't." The irate parent then upbraided the other girl for having his daughter out at such a time of night (9 o'clock), after which, holding the girl by the scruff of the neck, he disappeared with her. Talk about paternal devotion, wise and tender love, gentle and firm counseling to lead an adolescent young woman right! It was not only the exhibition of the brute, but the thought of the turmoil of feeling in the heart of that poor little girl. Is this humanity?

Subway Vamp

Editor Boston American:

Don't tell me the subway vamp is not in existence. I just encountered one. She smiled, dropped everything she could possibly think of, developed a cough and actually bumped into me as I was leaving the subway station. If that same girl should ever apply an equal amount of energy and determination to household duties what a wonderful wife she would make!

HIGHER COAL PRICES IF MINE WAGES ARE INCREASED

By Herbert Kaufman

THE coal conference indefinitely adjourns. Operators, after offering to continue existing scales through 1925, flatly refuse to pay the two-dollar-a-day increase demanded by mine workers.

Should the companies change their mind, we are warned that $70,000,000 would be added to F. O. B. prices.

Householders in New England, Eastern and Mid-Western States will be assessed practically every penny of this staggering sum—plus intermediate profits.

The average family's annual fuel bill will be boosted at least ten dollars. Labor and clerks will be chiefly taxed.

If President Lewis wins out, expect higher rents and stiffer costs of living all down the line.

One raise causes another; the final purchaser of all products, essentials and conveniences, pays the fiddler.

Farmers are the happily spared this probable infliction; coal stoves burn wood and kerosene.

Secretary Wallace, however, figures that their own bill for taxes, freight and indispensables aren't less than fifty per cent. above pre-war levels

Agriculture faces a Winter of discontent, but fundamental conditions are mending.

Government encouragement of co-operative organizations, better credit facilities, cheaper money, together with Federal future trading and warehouse acts, are combining to silver-line rural clouds.

Mr. Wallace asks the railroads to lower long-haul charges, and reminds commerce at large of the difference between a dollar at the ranch and on the merchant's counter.

It will take a lot of tinkering before such discrepancy disappears. The whole world machine must have its bolts and nuts tightened, gears adjusted and motors repaired in the meanwhile.

Secretary Mellon so intimates. A good man back where he is needed.

A personal investigation of Europe's tangles and wrangles fortifies his belief that we should neither interfere nor yet consider the refunding of additional foreign loans.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WELLS OF THOUGHT

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE old bookstalls of Paris, strung along on each side of the fascinating Seine, the tamed and civilized river, are no longer what they once were. I remember when they seemed to the eye of the mind a Milky Way of literature. The productions of the authors and printers of all ages and countries were to be found there in starry heaps. The ecstacy of discovery that only the bibliophile knows awaited anybody who had the patience to wander for hours from crowded stall to stall, turning over the piles of treasures that individually numbered millions, or were absolutely innumerable; for it was presumable that every time-stained volume, or pamphlet, or print was treasure-trove for somebody.

There was something magical in seeing these old books blinking in the full Paris sunshine, exposed to the outdoor glare, blown upon by the breezes that follow the river, which sometimes impertinently fluttered old yellow pages that might hardly have been turned respectfully since the days of Abelard and Heloise. And, what a disappointment it was when, having turned back in haste to buy some tempting thing that you had passed doubtfully half an hour before, and that had been haunting your mind ever since, and growing more irresistible in its appeal! "Take me while you have the chance!"—so the bouquinist just locking down the wooden cover at the first drops of a fast-coming shower.

I find that for the truly "old-book shops" there have been substituted simply second hand book shops—a very different kind of thing. This is strikingly the case in New York. You will find disreputable looking heaps of last years popular novels usurping the shelves and the bargain tables that once were rich with books that had been treasures for a hundred years, or two or three hundred years — the long-lived, hardwood trees of the forests of literature. The quickly-old new things are all right in great department stores and in drug stores, where they may be as innocuous as "soft drinks," but they are, according to me, intrusive in the real old shops of old books. HEROINES OF HISTORY

FANNY BURNEY PAVED THE WAY

By Mark Stuyvesant

ABOUT the middle of the eighteenth century there lived in London a distinguished musician—an organist—by the name of Dr. Charles Burney. His was a charming household and among his friends he numbered Sir Joshua Reynolds, the artist, the famous Dr. Johnson, Edmund Burke, the statesman, and Garrick, the celebrated actor. These notable men were often visitors at the home of Dr. Charles Burney.

It was in such an atmosphere that his daughter, little Fanny Burney, grew up, but she was such a shy and modest child that little attention was paid her.

All the while Fanny was perfectly contented to be by herself because she was forever scribbling and for this her stepmother, who was a very kind woman and anxious to bring her up to be a proper young lady, reprimanded her. For it was not considered ladylike for young ladies of that century to devote themselves to so masculine an occupation as writing.

Stirring to be "a lady" Fanny decided, when she was sixteen years old, to put aside all thought of being a novelist. She built a bonfire of her manuscripts, lit it and all of her stories went up in smoke. She had fully determined that her writing career was at an end.

But the spark of genius in Fanny had not died with the embers of her bonfire, because in her heart and mind was one story which she simply had to write—"Evelina," one of the most charming stories which came from her pen.

This story was written in the greatest secrecy and without the knowledge of her parents, and was not published until she was twenty-three years old.

The great Dr. Johnson read her book and declared:

"Miss Burney is a real wonder!"

When followed "Cecilia," which she wrote four years later, and which was published with marked success.

Miss Burney now became the centre of English society. All wanted the distinguished writer to grace their receptions and it was during this time—when she was about forty years of age—that Fanny Burney married General D'Arblay, a French refugee who had fled to England during the Revolution.

"Camilla" and "The Wanderer" were written after her marriage and they both increased her fame.

When she died in 1849, Mme. D'Arblay left behind her a great name. By the masterful way in which she described all phases of life, she had proved that women can write well.

The name of Fanny Burney is remembered as that of one of the pioneer women in English letters.

How Art, Tragedy and Jazz Blew Up Mrs. Astor's Pet Love Match

Her "Shimmy" Shocked Her Conservative Brother-in-Law.

PRETTY Mrs. Betty Pierson Parsons, of New York and Newport, has divorced her very blue-blooded husband, Schuyler Livingston Parsons.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, wife of the richest young man in America, is terribly upset thereby, for she made the Pierson-Parsons match.

And society, or that part of it which puts an ear to the ground, is saying the smashup can be traced to one primary and two minor causes—

First, the rude shock to his conservatism which Mr. Parsons, the most artistocratic and reserved of men, received, when his young wife went tearing down to that bizarre Greenwich Village to be one of those "arty" artists—

And second, the two previous shocks Mr. Parsons had withstood when his wife was innocently, but sensationally, named in the investigation of the Elwell mystery, and when his wife's two little sisters, Suzanne and Emily, were dubbed the "shimmy sisters" of the younger "400."

Since the Parsons divorce was one of those secretive Paris affairs where all the evidence was tied up in silence and red tape, society doesn't know exactly what blew up the romance. But, in the absence of stated grounds, society WILL speculate, especially where the objects of speculation are the pair who began their married life with the blessing, not to say the connivance, of such an august leader as Mrs. Vincent Astor.

Mrs. Astor gave a yachting party. That was in the Winter of 1919-20, just after Vincent Astor bought his glittering seagoing pleasure boat, the Nourmahal. The Astors decided to christen their $1,000,000 toy with a cruise to Bermuda, and to invite a few intimate friends to go with them.

Of course one of these had to be Betty Pierson. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Pierson, are not rich as riches are counted by the Astors and other multi-millionaires, but Betty is one of Helen Astor's oldest friends, her chum since childhood in New York and at Newport and in Westchester County.

Of course, too, Mrs. Astor was tremendously interested in Betty's future, and, like any young matron happily married herself, she could not resist the match-making inclination. At least, that is the reason gossip gave for the presence on the yachting party, along with Betty Pierson, of Schuyler Livingston Parsons.

Mr. Parsons was not simply a "catch" of the "400," he was a whole netful, so to speak. A wealthy bachelor whose father left an estate of $2,000,000, he was a Harvard man of the class of 1914, he served with the Red Cross in France during the war, he was a member of the elite Knickerbocker and Racquet clubs and of the ultra-exclusive Union League Club.

Most of all, Mr. Parsons represented "family." When the first John Jacob Astor was peddling furs about the streets of old New York, and long before old Cornelius Vanderbilt won his courtesy title of "commodore" by steering a ferryboat between Staten Island and the Battery, the Livingstons and the Schuylers were English and Dutch gentry who would have scorned to mingle on terms of equality with a fur peddler or a steam-boat captain.

Imagine, for example, Mr. Parsons' grandfather, an officer in the British Navy, hobnobbing with a lowly ferryboat owner when he first settled in America! Or Mr. Parsons' mother's grandfather, Robert Livingston, aiding an Astor of his day to dinner! Why, Robert Livingston was helping to draw up the Declaration of Independence and was serving as United States minister to France when the Astor fortune was still in its beginnings!

Though Schuyler Livingston Parsons did not have the reputation of a snob, the glamor of his lineage hung about him. His father had been a sportsman, a director of the Jockey Club and a power among the conservatives and the aristocrats of the turf. But Schuyler Parsons sold his father's fine stable of horses after the latter's death and lived easily and exclusively, much as his blue-blooded English forebears did a century before.

Somebody recalled that, at the peak of excitement over the murder of Joseph B. Elwell, society dilettante, bridge expert and turfman, when the authorities were running down every possible clue to the crime, Elwell's housekeeper, Mrs. Annie Kane, made an affidavit that the dead man knew, among other young women in society, Miss Betty Pierson.

The statement—a sensation at the time—was cabled abroad. The Paris correspondents descended in a body on Deauville, where Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, newlyweds, were stopping. Parsons flew into a rage with the newspapermen, his wife wept, both issued a statement that Mrs. Parsons had had the barest speaking acquaintance with Elwell, and any insinuations that they were friends were "perfectly ridiculous."

"Of course," agreed the gossips, harking back to this episode in their chatter over the divorce, "the insinuations were ridiculous! But what an annoying thing to happen to a man on his honeymoon—his wife involved, no matter how innocently, in the murder scandal of two continents! Schuyler Parsons' impeccable ancestors must have writhed in their graves! Wonder if Schuyler didn't writhe a bit himself?"

Other gossips recalled an occasion when Mr. Parsons did writhe, though in a very well-bred manner, in public. It was at a dance, the sub-deb set was much in evidence, and among the most-in-evidence sub-debbers were two pretty flappers who danced, as the slang phrase goes, "like streaks." They just had to shimmy, though a thousand chaperones fainted!

And somebody, snickering on the sidelines, repeated the nickname society had given them—the "shimmy sisters." Observers say that one who heard it registered an expression of deep pain. He was Schuyler Livingston Parsons, and the "shimmy sisters" were his sisters-in-law, Suzanne and Emily Pierson.

The shock this nickname gave to the descendant of Revolutionary statesmen and soldiers probably was not relieved when Suzanne—or "Suki," as her chums called her—did her shimmy dance in public at society's production of "What Next?" at the Princess Theatre.

But, if the ruffled Mr. Parsons had been annoyed before, he simply was outraged (say the gossips), when his young wife wafted from Fifth avenue to Sheridan Square and began to study sculpture among the attics and batiks of Greenwich Village. Art might be all very well for some people, but not for the wife of the scion of Schuylers and Livingstons—not Greenwich Village art!

It was soon after this that Mrs. Parsons sailed away, without her husband, for Italy—to study sculpture abroad, she said but also, as it turned out, to arrange the divorce. And—

"Of course," run the whispers, "Greenwich Village may not have any more to do with it than the shimmy or the Elwell case. After all, we may be wrong. Only one thing is certain—Mrs. Astor may know how to make a love match, but it takes more than yachts and moonshine to keep even an Astor-made match from flickering out!"

Society, learning that this had been the course of procedure in the Parsons case, poo-poohed several poo-poohs. "Mere formalities!" scoffed the wiseacres. "What is the real story?" And then and there began the speculation on the subject of tragedy, bohemia and jazz.

Mrs. Astor may—or may not—have considered the moon and the wavelets and Bermuda's palm trees when she arranged the Nourmahal cruise, but the fact remains that, when the yacht put into Palm Beach a few weeks later, the engagement of Betty and Schuyler was announced.

The wedding took place on May 8, 1920, at the Church of the Heavenly Rest in New York city, and society turned out by regiments in its best bib and tucker to shower rice and good wishes on the "little Pierson girl" and the son of one of the oldest of Father Knickerbocker's "first families."

They sailed away to Europe, and Mrs. Vincent Astor smiled and smiled, and society turned its attention to spicier matters until nearly three years passed and—bang!—cables from Paris carried the news that pretty Mrs. Parsons had a divorce.

"Dear! dear!" tut-tutted the erstwhile well-wishers. "Whatever can have happened? They were such a charming pair! And Mrs. Astor—"

Curiosity was difficult to satisfy. Mrs. Parsons, it appeared, had secured her divorce in the most popular Paris way, which is practically curiosity-proof. That is, the wife establishes residence, she informs the court her husband refuses to live with her, the court serves him with notice that he must reassume the marital relation. If he has not complied with this demand in ninety days the divorce becomes automatic.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury.

A CHICAGO woman has opened a school for teaching young brides how to get their husbands up in the morning. What the wives want to know most is how to get them home at night.

NO matter how much you study, it's impossible to get him up when you can't find him.

STATISTICS proves that married women get up much earlier than their husbands. Why shouldn't they, they get to bed four or five hours sooner.

IT'S hard for a man to get up at seven when he doesn't get home until six.

MOST women have to call their husbands nine or ten times before they get up, and it's a shame what they sometimes have to call them.

BUT one woman has a great system, she always calls him for the last time first.

SHE slaps his face and pulls him out of bed and warns him afterwards.

SHE tried tying an alarm clock to each one of his ears but they sounded like chimes and he imagined he was in church and went back to sleep again.

ONCE she threatened to leave him if he didn't wake up. He wasn't asleep, but he made believe he was.

NOW when she threatens to leave him he doesn't pay any attention because he knows he can't depend upon her.

FINALLY she divorced him because he snored. He snored so loud he even kept himself awake.

SHE told the judge that she had to burn the bed to get her husband out of it in the morning.

THEN she cried right in court because her husband was so lazy that he went and bought himself a pair of asbestos pajamas.

SHE claimed that when he went to bed he buried himself in the comforters so deep that it took three men to dig him out.

THE husband's defense was that his wife made him insane by forcing him to sleep under a crazy quilt.

HE said that when he went to bed by his watch he wasn't going to get up by her clock.

ONE guy liked to snooze so well that his wife hit him over the head with a poker and now he's sleeping permanently.

THIS school may be right but there's only one sure way of getting your husband up. Lock the front door before he comes home at night and then go down stairs in the morning and sweep him off the front porch.
